Goodbye Mr. Mapp

One might say it is the end of an era, for that seems the normal measurement of time an observer might apply to the public career of Commissioner of the Revenue Ivan D. Mapp. When he retires this December 31, Mapp will conclude a lifetime of public service to the citizens of Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach.

Having begun his political career four decades ago as a lieutenant in the organization that longtime friend Sidney S. Kellam headed, Mapp rose from clerk of the county's trial court to chief of the county police, to commissioner of the revenue, a job he has held since 1950.

The energetic 65 year-old also served as chairman of the committee of town and county officials who put together the modern City of Virginia Beach in 1963. Currently standing as chair of the city's Democratic Committee, Mapp proved so popular with the electorate that he has run unopposed since 1967.

It is typical of this modest man that he would say in a newspaper interview that a chance to influence the election of his successor "never crossed my mind."

The private life of Ivan Mapp has long been crowded with club and political activity, so we cannot really say "Goodbye Mr. Mapp". For a man so public spirited and busy we might better say, "Great job, Mr. Mapp. We will, no doubt, see you around."—S.M.

A knock at the door

Nearly 30 years ago, the development of psychotropic drugs that modify moods and behavior opened new vistas for the treatment of the mentally ill. With drug therapy, patients who might have needed long-term hospitalization could be treated on an outpatient basis. Meanwhile, the concept of self-help recovery groups and halfway houses for the mentally ill was beginning to emerge. Health agencies saw an attractive alternative to the warehousing of mental patients in large, grim "insane asylums."

Thus began a conscious effort to deinstitutionalize the mentally ill in America, to shift the focus of mental treatment from large institutions to local communities. Beginning with the creation by Congress of the Joint Commission on Mental Illness and Health in 1955, legislative acts at the federal and state level began reflecting the new emphasis on community treatment facilities.

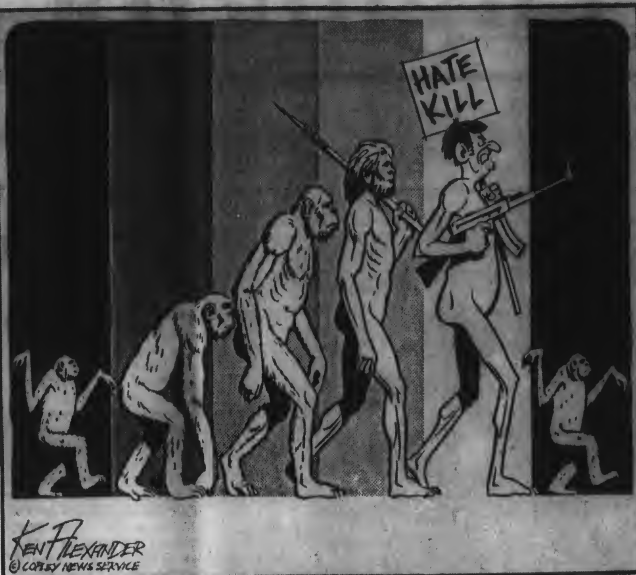

What has happened in the intervening years shows how a praiseworthy undertaking can go wrong in the most tragic way. A study by the American Psychiatric Association (APA) says deinstitutionalization has been a "disastrous" failure, creating a new class of derelict—the homeless mentally ill.

"Hardly a section of the country, urban or rural," the report says, "has escaped the ubiquitous presence of ragged, ill and hallucinating human beings, wandering through our city streets, huddled in alleyways or sleeping over vents." One does not have to look far to see evidence of what the APA refers to as a "moral scandal."

Since 1955, the number of patients being treated in large public mental hospitals has been cut by three-fourths. But the development of new community mental health facilities has not proceeded at a corresponding rate. Hence the release of mental patients into communities that are not prepared to receive them.

The APA study does not recommend how mental health programs should be reorganized and administered to keep patients from falling through the cracks, nor does it estimate how much it would cost to provide shelter, food, clothing and medical treatment for those now wandering the streets. It is significant, however, that the study does not find fault with the concept that patients would be better off being treated in community programs than in hospitals.

New forms of therapy and better understanding of the mentally ill mean that we do not have to lock up all mental patients in institutions. But that does not end our responsibility; it only moves the problem to our local doorstep. The APA report on the homeless mentally ill should be taken as a knocking at the door that demands a response.

Letters To The Editor

A catch to the flat rate tax?

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

We are deeply concerned about the newest push from Washington to "simplify" taxes which could have serious and dangerous consequences for the people of Virginia.

Something called the flat rate tax is being pushed under a number of different bills, as a quick fix solution to replace the progressive income tax. It would wipe out most deductions and tax everyone at one "flat" rate. Sounds simple.

But there's a catch. Many economists say it would unintentionally shift the tax burden to moderate income wage earners while cutting taxes for those who earn more than $50,000 annually by $40 billion. It could also stifle investment needed to stimulate jobs and economic growth. It could eliminate funding sources for municipal improvements and housing and dry up capital for energy exploration.

The progressive income tax, based on the reasonable concept that those who earn more should pay more makes sense. True reform could make it work better. But the flat tax isn't reform—it's a disaster waiting to happen.

More on uranium mining

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

I write as a Pittsylvania County Virginian, a physician, a mother, a grandmother and a human being interested in the conservation of our most valuable resources, air and water, for the sustenance and enjoyment of our own and future generations.

As a physician I know that radiation has a cumulative harmful effect on people. In the sperm and ova that carry the reproductive code from one generation to the next and in the rapidly developing tissues of fetuses and young children, increasing doses of radiation are associated with cellular changes, some resulting in death and some in malfunctions and malformations. As we grow older, the associated changes are less spectacular but not less devastating - rises in leukemia and cancer.

There should be no rush to mine Virginia's uranium. If there is future demand, its value will increase. If the hazards of uranium development with presently available technology promise to outweigh its benefits, as seems likely, Virginia will be far better off not to have risked irreparable damage to our earth, air and water, which are far more valuable resources than uranium.

I urge members of the General Assembly to vote an extension of the moratorium on uranium mining until they can give us absolute assurances of its safety.

All right boys and girls...let's exercise!

Jane Fonda started it all. Her bestselling book, Jane Fonda's Workout Book was a forerunner of a whole host of celebrity beauty and fitness books which have inspired thousands of Americans to stretch, bounce, pant and primp their way to a new self-image.

It's never been quite clear to me why those who have achieved fame through acting or modeling feel compelled to give advice on matters of nutrition, health and fitness and why, for that matter, the rest of us listen to their wisdom. Perhaps those of us with flab and freckles hope a bit of the perfection and glitter of the stars will rub off if we only listen to what they say.

Sometimes it seems as if anyone with a beautiful face or body has produced a fitness book. Actresses, including Victoria Principal (The Body Principal) and Linda Evans (Linda Evans Beauty and Exercise Book); models, such as Christie Brinkley (Christie Brinkley's Outdoor Beauty and Exercise Book) and Cheryl Tiegs (The Way to Natural Beauty) and athletes, such as skier Suzy Chafetz (I Love New York Fitness Book) have all contributed their expertise in this field.

The end is still not in sight. A whole new crop of celebrities have just published fitness books and are ready to teach us how to lead trimmer, healthier lives.

Jane Fonda is making another appearance with a book for the middle-aged woman entitled, Women Coming of Age. This nutrition, exercise and beauty guide is filled with sensible advice for getting in shape, staying healthy and generally feeling good.

Sophia Loren has geared her new book, Women and Beauty, to the same audience. A wealth of photographs of Sophia in her many movie roles illustrate her philosophy of simplicity and comfort in makeup and clothing.

Santa was a no show

The Bill McBride photos of Santa Claus at Lynnhaven Mall bring to mind a college experience with Santa that left somewhat of a strange taste in my mouth.

Hold on now, of course I'm not going to badmouth the old gent during his big month. It's just that he let me down when I needed him. It all goes back to some wise guy's idea that my college fraternity would entertain the kids at The Children's Hospital of The King's Daughters.

Having played a pirate for the City of Norfolk's Treasure Island show at the Botanical Gardens (which is another story, to say the least), the boys picked me to perform a skit for the kids who were spending their holidays at the hospital.

Ed's notes

By Samuel Martinette, Jr.

A fraternity brother and I were to do a quick twenty minutes of a loony doctor examining Santa Claus. The other guy was to wear the Santa suit, and I would do a Marx Brothers style physician, complete with Teutonic accent. I can't recall who was to do the Saint Nick role, or I'd give him a bad review to this day, but when show time came around there I was with a white smock, a stethoscope and one of those old timey circular lights that does used to wear above their foreheads. You know the ones, with a mirror that showed you a horrible view of your throat whenever the doctor looked you over.

Anyway, there I am waiting to do a quick improvisation with my pal when the telephone call comes and there's no Santa, and no Santa suit. All there is, is a room full of kids waiting for a show.

"Bring me a little guy with a sense of humor," I asked a nurse who was helping me get into my doctor outfit.

She rolled in an eight year old black child in a wheelchair whose eyes lit up when he saw me. I explained to him what had happened, no Santa and all, and asked him if he thought he would be able to hit me in the face with a pie at the end of the act. He would be glad to he assured me. I gave him his cue.

So out I went, quacking and sputtering, pinching and probing, doing my best dime store doctor. "Ja," I said, "dat vun needs der shot and dis vun needs un enemy!"

I made up for my lack of script and finesse with noise and movement. The kids loved it. It was the Katzenjammer Kids all over again, this time with a medical degree.

"Ja, Ja, Ja," I said, prancing and posturing, the sweat rolling down my back. Would it never end?

I worked my way around the room, giving each child some attention, trying to make them laugh with a fool's burlesque. I finally found myself in front of my co-star, who seemed quite hypnotized, his eyes staring blankly at me, the pie sitting in his lap looking like it would go nowhere.

"Ach!" I shouted. "Dis vun hes und pie! Very good! You must gif der doktor der pie!"

That was his cue. The deal was when I leaned over to sniff the pie he was to let me have it. I sniffed and he sat. No pie. I had acted so absurd that the kid must have thought I was a real doctor! "Gif me dot pie!" I exclaimed.

The lad didn't move. Didn't even flinch. I did what I had to, to get out of there. I took a sniff of the pie, leaned over and mashed my face into it. The room went wild as I made my exit.

"That kid's no trouper," I hissed to the giggling nurses. Remind me to hire a midget next time.

Park connector bikeway opened

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Park Connector Bikeway, between Mount Trashmore and Princess Anne Parks was opened Friday, November 30, at 3:30 p.m. The ribbon cutting ceremony took place at the Farmer's Market on Landstown Road where the trails connect with the Market.

The connector bikeway was identified as a priority bikeway in the Master Bikeway Plan that was adopted by City Council in 1981. After adoption of the plan an application was sent to the Commissioner of Outdoor Recreation (now the Virginia Division of Parks and Recreation) and the Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation for grant funding. In the fall of 1981 these agencies approved funding for 5.2 miles of Class I, II and III bikeway for this project. Total grant funds were $192,500 with a city match of $142,500. There was also $50,000 appropriated from revenue sharing funds to purchase the utility easement from Vepco one which the central portion of the bikeway runs.

Councilwoman Reba McClanan, Princess Anne Borough representative gives credit to many groups for the completion of the bikeway and sites it as truly an example of community effort. She added that "it is one of the nicest things to happen in this area since I have served on council." Vice-Mayor McClanan also commented on the rural touch the bikeway adds to this urban area.

Further information can be obtained by calling Bob Mathias, Grants Specialist at 427-4721.

*Permitted uses should be eliminated which allow multi-family dwellings in B-3, 4 and 5 Business zones, and as a conditional use in O-1 Office and B-1 Business zones. Excess O or B-1-4 land could be rezoned to permit residential uses if desirable and appropriate, she said. This would allow the Council and Planning Commission to control both the location and amount of future multi-family dwellings, she said.

*No rezoning to residential categories should be approved south of the "green line" for the next five years. This should allow time to plan for utility extension and schools, for consideration of problems in other areas of the city, for continued efforts for a larger share of highway funding monies and for future market demands to be demonstrated.

Her remarks drew the support of Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. who said, "I like what I hear."

However, Councilman John A. Baum said that as one of the so-called "gang of six" (Council members usually in the majority), "I think you just left us."

He said that agricultural and residential uses just are not compatible. Creech then recommended as an alternative a strong program of controlled planning for the next five years which, could possibly serve to offset the effects of any growth which might occur in the southern portion of the city.

"The problem of roads, schools and inadequate utilities are not the result of houses; they are the result of people...The outcry from citizens that services are inadequate is true. Let us not fail to realize, however, that we ourselves are the contributing factors to that very inadequacy."

According to the information on downzoning submitted by Planning Director Scott Monday, if all of the parcels now zoned for development were developed to their potential, 15,668 units would be added to the city.

Council reportedly discussed in executive session Monday evening whether to include Foxfire in the downzoning. Foxfire is a subdivision where developers are ready to start building.

Council will have to decide, Scott said, not only when the southern part of the city should be developed, but how dense that development should be. He said that no measures other than downzoning have been considered to restrict development to the northern end of the city.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. asked how long the no-growth policy should be continued or whether it should be tied to the extension of services.

Scott said that it is a question of judgment and that City Council has to make the decision.

Jennings replied that some farmers are not making ends meet and might be concerned with the downzoning.

Scott also submitted in his report estimates of the impact of development on traffic. Although the roads south of the "green line" would have to be improved with development, he said, it would not cost the city additional road money, but the shifting of priorities.

VBGH names Villines

VIRGINIA BEACH - Virginia Beach General Hospital has named Sharon L. Villines as marketing representative. The announcement was made recently by VBGH President W. Earl Willis.

Villines' responsibilities will include marketing of outpatient services for the hospital. She has held marketing positions with several national hospital equipment manufacturers.

With an undergraduate degree from Maryland University, Villines earned her Master's Degree in business administration in 1984 from Old Dominion University. Villines is a ten-year

Villines

Contel clears up questions

VIRGINIA BEACH—All the changes and new services Continental Telephone is implementing have caused some confusion for Contel customers, said Mike Hall, superintendent-telephone services.

"We want to clear up these questions and put our customers at ease," Hall recently said.

Continental customers recently received a direct mailer about phone ownership and maintenance of inside wire. "Our customers don't have to do anything if they don't want to," Hall said. "If we do not receive the mail-back card from them, we will automatically do two things. On January 1, we'll start applying the telephone leasing charge towards the purchase of the phone they are now leasing. And we will continue charging 40 cents per month to maintain their inside wire for them."

At the end of the 12-month payment period, the phone will be paid for and maintenance will be the customer's responsibility. During the 12-month payment period, Continental will provide a limited maintenance warranty.

If customers want to keep their rotary phones, they can certainly do so, said Hall. However, if someone wants to subscribe to any of the custom calling features (call waiting, call forwarding, three-way calling and speed calling), they will have to have a touch tone phone.

Hall noted that special features will be added to the Contel system as they become available. To use these new features customers must have touch tone service.

Optional Usage Pricing Service (OUPS) is now available to the exchanges of Princess Anne, Pungo and Shipp's Corner. OUPS is an optional plan that charges for local calls by measuring time of day, duration, and distance of each call. "OUPS is strictly optional," Hall said.

"Customers can subscribe to this service by choice. They can stay with the flat rate service and continue to make all the local calls they want, or they may choose one of the new OUPS plans," Hall explained.

Farm bureau head calls future hazy

NORFOLK - "The most accurate projection of the economic outlook for U.S. agriculture is that it is hazy," said S.T. Moore, Jr., president of the Virginia Farm Bureau to the organization's recent annual meeting here.

The hazy outlooks, Moore said, is due to non-agricultural political and economic factors, and due to the uncertainty of the shape of new farm legislation that will be enacted by Congress in 1985.

"Any new farm program must be consistent with economic realities," Moore said, restating Farm Bureau's position that "We must move as rapidly as possible toward a market-oriented agriculture with only the most essential government assistance."

Moore expressed confidence that the re-election of President Reagan augurs well for the prospects of agriculture and the economy as a whole. He pointed to a 75 percent voter turnout by farmers as indicative of the vital role farmers played in the Presidential election, and he gave credit to the Farm Bureau's "Campaign '84" effort for turning out such a high percentage of farmers at the polls.

"We believe President Reagan will continue to be supportive of our positions on most farm policy issues and general issues essential to the nation's continued economic recovery."

He listed those positions as reductions in the size of the federal government; an across-the-board freeze on federal spending other than interest payments on the debt and defense; a "freeze-and-fix" program to reform entitlement programs; a line-item veto for the President on appropriation bills; and a constitutional amendment to balance the budget. He blamed Congress for the current budget deficit problem, and urged spending restraints instead of taxes.

Should the elderly sell longtime home?

Not every older person should sell a longtime home and move into an apartment. Those who enjoy keeping up a home can certainly remain, at relatively low out-of-pocket expense because such property is usually completely paid for.

Sometimes, however, senior citizens who would enjoy being free from upkeep and maintenance worries stay tied to large houses longer than they need to.

"Of course taxes are going up, and I'll have to put a new roof on soon, and it keeps getting harder to find someone to do the lawn. But, just the same, it costs me so little to live here. The place is free and clear. And when I hear what they're getting for apartments today, I can't afford moving."

Real Estate

By Roger Pyle

It's too bad they don't understand their situation better. They may hear that their home is worth $80,000, but that's hard to realize because they never saw that money—they paid $4,000 for the place in 1940.

Just the same, every day they remain in the house, they are choosing to invest $80,000 in it instead of somewhere else, where it might bring enough income to cover rent on the apartment they'd prefer.

Businesses beware sales approach

RICHMOND—Businesses approached by groups selling advertising space as fund raising projects for rescue squads, fire fighters or policemen should be aware of misrepresentation, according to Michael Wright of the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services Office of Consumer Affairs. Wright claims that in reality, a number of these fund raising campaigns have no sponsor or if they do, the sponsoring group receives only a few hundred dollars regardless of the amount raised.

"Businesses that purchase ads feel they are helping a local or state organization. In some cases, the only help an organization receives is a copy of the publication," Wright recently said. "When an organization does agree to become a sponsor, the title of the publication may include wording similar to The Official Publication of the Las Vegas Fire Fighters. In these situations, the sponsor may receive anywhere from $200 to $40,000 per publication and the members of the organization also receive a copy of the magazine."

Wright said he recently reviewed one such magazine and found that over 70 pages of 133 were devoted to advertising. Three pages alone contained ads from 186 businesses. There is also concern in many states that some publications are not even circulated.

He suggests that anyone solicited to purchase this type of ad should find out if it is sponsored by a particular organization, ask how much of the purchase price will go to the organization represented, determine the circulation of the publication and verify the ad if "space" is purchased. "It is also suggested that all contributions to benevolent organizations be sent directly to their permanent mailing address rather than through a campaign solicitor."

Sky Watch

A Monthly Feature Prepared By The Science Museum of Virginia

DECEMBER SKY CHARTS: To use these sky charts face either north or south and hold the charts directly in front of you with the horizon on the bottom. The charts show the brightest stars and planets between the horizon and the part of the sky directly overhead during the early evening hours this month.

CONSTELLATIONS: Orion, one of the brightest constellations in the winter sky, is beginning to rise above the southeastern horizon. This constellation, shaped like a large hour-glass, contains more bright stars than any other star group, with two stars of great brilliancy. These two stars are Betelgeuse and Rigel. Betelgeuse marks the right shoulder of Orion and Rigel is in the left foot. To the ancients, Orion resembled a hunter, with his club raised and a shield of lion skin pointed towards Taurus the bull.

Facing north, the three bright stars of the Summer Triangle — Vega, Deneb and Altair — are visible above the western horizon. In the east, the bright stars Capella, Castor and Pollux and Procyon are found.

PLANETS: In the evening sky, look for brilliant Venus and the red planet Mars. Venus, often seen as the Christmas Star, will be visible very low in the southwest just after sunset before disappearing beneath the horizon three hours later. Mars moves from Capricornus into the Aquarius this month, and can be found just above the southern horizon at sunset.

By the end of the month, early morning viewers can expect to see Mercury and Saturn in the pre-dawn sky. Mercury will appear very low in the southeast just before sunrise and Saturn, rising about three hours before the sun, can also be found low in the southeast.

CELESTIAL EVENTS: During the early morning hours of December 14 and 15, look for meteors from one of the greatest showers of the year. These are the Geminid meteors, fragments of a once-magnificent, but now-demolished comet. The meteors will be visible throughout the night, at first in the east, then swinging around to the west in the morning.

Meteors from the Ursid shower will light up the sky on the evening of December 21. These meteors, coming from a point in Ursa Minor, should be easy to view since the shower occurs near the time of a new moon, providing observers with a dark sky.

The season of winter arrives at 11:23 a.m. EST on December 21 when the sun stands directly above the Tropic of Cancer marking the winter solstice. On this day, the sun will trace its lowest path across the sky and is above the horizon for the shortest amount of time this year.

MOON PHASES:
 Full Moon: Saturday, Dec. 8.
 Last Quarter: Saturday, Dec. 15.
 New Moon: Saturday, Dec. 22.
 First Quarter: Sunday, Dec. 30.

Chow Line

By Julie Storeide

Combine the first four ingredients, stirring well; coat chicken in breadcrumb mixture. Arrange chicken in a shallow baking pan coated with cooking spray. Dot with margarine; cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Pour wine over chicken. Cover and bake 15 minutes; uncover and bake another 15 minutes.

I'm interested in printing reader recipes. If you have one you want to share, please send it to: Julie Storeide, Food Editor, The Virginia Beach Sun, 138 South Rosemont Road, Virginia Beach, Virginia, 23452. Be sure to include your name and complete instructions for cooking.

Chicken with wine...so fine!

Here's another quick dinner for the busy holiday season, a recipe from Cooking Light, Oxmoor House, 1983, that I've modified. It's low in calories and high in taste. I've tried this recipe on many people and get raves each time. You can serve eight people with an average appetite or four hungry ones. For variation I top the chicken with fresh sliced mushrooms and lend a heavier hand when pouring on the wine. Just add a hot vegetable and a green salad for a complete meal. Hope it's a hit!

Marsala Baked Chicken

1/4 cup fine, dry breadcrumbs
 1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese
 2 tbs minced, fresh parsley
 1/4 tsp paprika
 8 chicken thighs skinned (the boned thighs work well if you don't like to fight with bones.)
 vegetable cooking spray
 2 tbs margarine
 1/2 cup Marsala wine

Getting fit sells

 this abundance of celebrity fitness books. John Travolta, former TV "sweatshop" and current dancing star of such films as "Staying Alive," offers his fitness principles in a new book, Staying Fit. This regimen of dance movements, stretches and weight training was Travolta's method of getting in shape for his latest film role.

Finally, for those who have eaten right with Jane, learned makeup techniques with Sophia, shaped up with John and are now ready to celebrate their triumph with a night on the town, actress

Marissa Berenson offers advice on what to wear, in her book Dressing up. This look at clothing for special occasions presents some sound and sensible advice on choosing fashions for various functions as well as illustrations of some off-the-wall styles.

For whatever the reasons, it looks as though the celebrity fitness book will be with us for some time to come. And those who have followed the advice in this latest batch of books should be ready for a fit and healthy holiday season.

to peruse the document in Bimson's office and not to treat the Planning Commission in the same way.

Bimson replied that he told members the document was sensitive, but that some refused to turn in the copies.

Councilman John A. Baum said that some people on Council and on the Planning Commission do not support downzoning. He said that the legal document will not stay private long, in any case. He pointed out that confidentiality in executive sessions is repeatedly abused, and people can absorb the gist of the document without taking it home.

Oberndorf said she merely questioned advising City Council one way and the Planning Commission another way. "I did not have time to read the entire document, let alone specifics."

Baum replied that the document was not all that long. He said eventually "we're going to get away from the Planning Commission and what they think" and make a decision.

Oberndorf retorted that maybe it would have been best to do everything in public in the first place. Then there would have been no misunderstanding.

Mayor Harold Heischober said that he returned his copy and believed other Council members did likewise. "I did not know that the Planning Commission had asked for copies at their meeting," but "what could the city attorney have done? Could he had physically taken them back?"

The mayor said the fault was with the Planning Commission and not with the city attorney. "I don't think the city attorney should take the brunt."

The discussion was halted abruptly when Councilwoman Nancy Creech shifted to a different part of the discussion on downzoning.

Later, Oberndorf said that Heischober's reply was "immature and assinine." She said that the Planning Commission is made up of adults like Council and she felt sure if the city attorney had told them to return the documents, they would have. In addition, she claimed, members of the Planning Commission attended the meeting with Council when the document was distributed and they saw the city attorney take up the copies.

Oberndorf said this was not a responsible way to run government.

CHICAGO, IL - The Seventh Edition of Who's Who In The World will be coming out in December and a Virginia Beach resident, architect Laszlo Aranyi, AIA, will be included in those whose biographies fill its pages.

Already somewhat of a local celebrity, due to the numerous awards he and his staff at The Design Collaborative have won in architecture and energy innovation, Aranyi said recently he felt honored to have been nominated and chosen for inclusion.

Aranyi has practiced architecture in Virginia Beach for the last 20 years, during which time he has made many contributions to cultural and civic affairs. Two of his art works, a painting and a mural, were published recently in the Hampton Roads Virginia Guide to Visual Artists. His prize winning mural, "Gateway To The Future," depicting the Norfolk skyline was painted on a building in downtown Norfolk. He is co-author of a book on nursing homes entitled Design of Long-Term Care Facilities, published in 1980. For his

VIRGINIA BEACH—As director of The New Dimension Realty Company, the recently formed dance ensemble of the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, Sherry Koester is tougher than she looks.

"Some of the kids involved in the tryouts for the new company came to me after auditions and said, 'you don't mess around, do you?'" Koester laughed. "They were worn out. That's right, I told them. Why mess around?"

Koester smiles as she related the formation of the new troupe during a recent interview at Danter's Atlantic, the facility she and her partner Karen Buschheim have established on Viking Drive in Virginia Beach.

"I know the value of hard work and practice," Koester added. "I studied under Gene Hammett at The Norfolk Academy of Ballet, having begun dancing at the age of five. It was something to show my Daddy when he returned from a Navy cruise."

Koester has put together an ensemble of six dancers and four apprentices, who will figuratively carry the City's banner during this weekend's presentation of "Winter Wonderland", with performances set for Friday, December 14 at 7:30 p.m., and on Saturday the 15th and Sunday December 16 at 3 p.m. at the Kempville Playhouse, located at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center/Kempville, 800 Monmouth Lane. Admission is free, with no reservations required.

"The first piece is 'Winter,'" Koester explained, "with variations of the seasons following. We'll open with our four apprentices, Sarah Verhalen, Jackie Konken, Stacy Weidner and Dawn Norton dressed as snowflakes. Then frost, ice, hail and snow will follow in the persons of Lois Peterson, Sharon Andrewais, Monica Murray, Michele Murray and Dawn Allen. Kimberly Johnson, and an apprentice, will dance the "Dance of the Toy Flutes" from "The Nutcracker."

VIRGINIA BEACH—A $2 million Industrial Development Revenue Bond will be issued to the Association of Maryland Pilots Facility for the construction of a two-story marine operations dormitory and one-half interest in a pilot control tower on Shore Drive at Lynnhaven Inlet.

The bond, to be issued by the Virginia Beach Development Authority, was approved by City Council Monday afternoon.

The project is contingent on a use permit request which will be before Council in early January.

The bond represents a share of the city's local private activity bond allocation.

Council also adopted a resolution encouraging the Suffolk Redevelopment and Housing Authority to issue special revenue bonds for the benefit of Wildwood Associates for a multi-family housing project consisting of 180 housing units on Wildwood Drive near its intersection with Country Mill Road in Hilltop. The amount of the issue is $5 million.

Since Virginia Beach has no housing authority, the request is being made through another locality.

VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Beach's seven state legislators will be on hand for a Legislative Forum at a Beach Briefs breakfast program December 18 at Pavilion Tower Hotel.

The forum will be sponsored by the Virginia Beach Council of the Hampton Roads Organization. Breakfast will be served at 7:45 a.m. and tickets are $7.50 per person. There will be no refunds after December 14.

Participating in the program will be senators A. Joseph Canada Jr. and Dr. Clarence A. Holland and delegates Glenn B. McClanan, J. William O'Brien, William R. O'Brien, Owen B. Pickett and Robert Tata. Each will address an issue of interest to Virginia Beach.

For reservations and information Sun readers should call 490-1221.

VIRGINIA BEACH—Governor Charles S. Robb will be the keynote speaker at the Annual Membership Meeting of the Virginia Beach Council, Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce.

The theme of this luncheon event, which will be held Friday, January 11 at Virginia Beach Pavilion, is "Virginia Beach Alive in '85: Think BIG* (*Business + Industry = Growth)."

Another highlight of the meeting will be the naming of Virginia Beach's "Small Business of the Year" recipient. This will be the second year the Beach Council has presented this award. Last year's recipient was Computer Dynamics, Inc. (CDI).

The Council's 1985 officers will also be installed and other awards will be made. Outgoing Chairman Michael C. Savvides will preside.

A cash bar will open at 11:15 a.m.; the luncheon will follow at noon. Tickets are $15 per person, or $110 for tables of eight (reserved in company names).

For reservations Sun readers should call the Beach office at 490-1221.

VIRGINIA BEACH—A years planning has brought joy to the residents of Southeastern Virginia Training Center, a state operated residential facility for the mentally retarded, located off Military Highway in Chesapeake.

A tree lighting service was recently held at SEVTC. Several civic groups joined forces to furnish the center's first lighted Christmas tree. The Lake Smith Terrace Garden Club of Virginia Beach donated $100 toward the purchase of an evergreen tree planted last Spring. The Parents Group of SEVTC gave outdoor lights and bulbs so the residents can enjoy the tree during the holiday season. The tree lighting service was highlighted with Christmas music furnished by the choir (of Virginia Beach), led by David Thomas, director.

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Department of Social Services began to distribute surplus cheese, milk and butter on Tuesday, December 11 and will continue through Thursday, December 13, from 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m., at 3432 Virginia Beach Boulevard.

The commodities will be distributed on a first-come, first-serve basis. Eligible recipients include: December recipients of Aid to Dependent Children, Food Stamps, Medicaid, General Relief, State and Local Hospitalization, 1983-84 or 1984-85 Fuel Assistance. Recipients of more than one program may receive commodities one time only.

Those who are picking up supplies for a household other than their own should bring a permission statement signed by the head of the household.

For more information, Sun readers should contact the Department of Social Services at 486-7221.

On beautiful Atlantic Ave

According to the recently released Economic Analysis of the Atlantic Avenue Beautification Project the tourists who visit the city each year have a less negative image of Atlantic Avenue than do many locals.

The report also stated that the Beautification Project would not be the answer to all of the problems associated with Atlantic Avenue, but would definitely change tourist patterns to the tune of at least $33 million in increased revenues over a 30-year period.

Resort area businesses would of course benefit most directly from the project, receiving 42.4 percent of the total sales generated, with the remaining 57.6 percent distributed to retail and service businesses throughout the city. The study also found that the project can be expected to generate 1,743 new jobs.

However, a slight majority of residents (53 percent) believe that tourism either raises their taxes (31 percent) or has no effect on their taxes (22 percent). As the survey moves away from Atlantic Avenue, the percentage of residents who believe that tourism lowers taxes increases. And that is the bulk of the citizenry of Virginia Beach.

There is no doubt that Atlantic Avenue is sorely in need of a facelift. Alongside the multi-million dollar condos one may find a souvenir shop gaudy enough to satisfy the most sniffy collector of kitsch.—S.M.

Addressing tax reform

The problem being addressed in the Treasury Department's tax reform proposal deserves consideration in its own right, without quibbling over the Reagan administration's priorities and tactics in presenting it.

The personal income tax mess has become a national scandal.

The 16th Amendment, ratified in 1913, authorized the federal income tax. It is only 31 words long. It has been overgrown with such a monstrous tangle of laws, regulations, deductions and exemptions that a whole new industry, employing an army of lawyers and accountants, has been created just to help tax-payers understand it and take advantage of it.

Once Americans prided themselves on honest and prompt payment of tax debts. Now they are made to feel like fools unless they go to any length to avoid paying income taxes.

It is estimated that every year the Treasury loses $100 billion in tax revenue to legal loopholes and another $100 billion to illegal practices.

Form 1040 has turned a generation of honest Americans into tax cheats.

It is, as President Carter said, "a disgrace to the human race." And before this country, long considered "the last best hope of mankind," accepts such disgrace, we should move heaven and Earth to end it.

It will take some kind of political earthquake to achieve any meaningful reform. The difficulties are so great that it has seemed easier to give up the effort, simply de-emphasize the personal income tax without trying to reform it, and turn to a new consumption-based tax source, such as the value-added tax, to balance the federal budget. But the VAT remains a distant prospect. Let's have another good go at income tax reform before giving up on the project.

President Regan will have to give the effort his full support before it has any chance of succeeding. The trial balloon will have to turn into a battle star. The people's reaction will determine whether this metamorphosis takes place. As always with great issues in America, the outcome rests in the lap of public opinion.

The details of the Treasury proposal are unimportant at this stage. Don't ask, how is this going to affect me? What is important is the thrust toward a modified flat-tax plan, eliminating most deductions and exemptions, making the income tax simply a revenue measure, not an instrument of social policy.

The president should give the simplification goal his full support, and keep this issue separate from the budget controversy, so Congress can consider tax simplification on its own merits.—C.E.C.

Letters To The Editor

Benefits to those who served

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

In response to queries about why Representative Whitehurst and Senator Tribble are proud of the recent bill which will return some of the benefits long-term ex-military wives earned serving our country, it is simply because they are honorable and just men.

Your readers should remember that the same promises made to military members were also made to military wives; only military members were smarter than military wives because they got their contract in writing, while military wives trusted Congress' verbal promises that it would keep faith with them and at the end reward us for serving.

To those who say it is high time we who have served and earned military benefits be concerned about medical benefits shrinking, or even disappearing under sheer weight of numbers, I reply "amen." Sometimes we forget there is no free lunch. Someone ultimately pays; in this case the taxpayer. There is only so much military medicine available at any price, and it is only right, just and proper that it go to those who have earned it. If Congress would only enact into law that basic American belief that says that all public benefits must be earned by public service, we could sort it all out. Those who served would receive; those who did not serve would not receive. I refer specifically to those freeloaders who are reaping where they did not sow—women who married military men just before they retired from the service or shortly thereafter.

Why should the public pay so that those women who never served can have free medical care? Based on what? What did they do to deserve it? Is a marriage ceremony to a retired military man worth $1,500 per person, per year to the taxpayer? I say absolutely not. I strongly believe that public benefits should go only to those people who served.

People who CARE should help

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

The recent news reports from Ethiopia and other drought and famine-stricken countries in Africa have brought home to the American public the colossal dimensions of one of the most profound tragedies of our time.

People who have responded to the crisis with financial and moral support have done much to help stem a catastrophe that threatens to engulf more victims daily. But the crisis in Africa had been a long time in the making before it caught the media's eye. And after the immediate needs of the present emergency are met, the world's attention may well be diverted to another gripping event.

To help people achieve self-sufficiency, CARE operates today in 36 countries in the developing world. We wish to take this opportunity to thank the American people for their help in this emergency and we urge them to continue to provide support to countries desperately in need.

'Tis the season for holiday books

One of the publishing industry's most popular subjects is Christmas books. This year there is a bumper crop of wonderful books celebrating the holiday season. Three titles, in particular, deserve special mention because they are new editions of old family favorites. All three are also newly illustrated by a noted children's illustrator.

Perhaps the most eagerly awaited of the three books is the new edition of The Nutcracker (Crown, 1984). This version is a translation of the original tale written by E.T.A. Hoffmann in 1816. It is a much more complex story than found in the traditional ballet. The illustrations for this edition are by Maurice Sendak (author of Where The Wild Things Are and In The Night Kitchen). They are based upon his sets and costume designs for the Pacific Northwest Ballet's 1983 production of the ballet. Sendak has also produced illustrations for the book's subplot, "The Story of the Hard Nut," which does not appear in the ballet. Since the original Hoffmann tale has been difficult to locate, this is a major publishing event. It is made doubly so by the fact that it is illustrated in Sendak's colorful and imaginative style.

The second new edition of a popular book is Valentine Davis' Miracle On 34th Street (Harcourt, Brace and Jovanovich, 1984). This classic story of a Macy's department store Santa Claus has been translated onto the screen a number of times. But it was always Davis' wish that the short novel be illustrated. This year Tomi de Paola undertook the task and has produced a delightful work. His clear, strong, bold pictures enhance the story greatly.

Finally, the third new version of a holiday favorite is Clement

The Old Man and the Tube

Among the many wonderful wedding gifts my wife Julie and I received is one item which, I must confess, is trying my soul. It is a very nice present, most up to the minute in its high technology approach to watching the tube.

What I'm talking about is a VCR.

You know what a VCR is, that newfangled gizmo that allows you to watch television when you aren't even home. All you have to do is program the little devil and it will record your favorite soap, football game or whatever while you are away.

Ed's notes

By Samuel Martinette, Jr.

And there's the rub. There is a reason, reader, that I am an editor and not a recording engineer. What you have here at the typewriter is a basic Cro-Magnon man when it comes to high tech. So it came as a great relief to yours truly when my up-to-the-minute nieces and nephews took over to set up the new toy.

"It's simple," they assured me. "All you have to do is this, that, and so on..."

Sure. "Let's record a movie," the wife suggested. "Then we can go Christmas shopping."

"Good idea," my niece Laurie piped in. "Do you mind if we record a show for the kids?"

"How about something with some action?" Nephew Pete inquired.

"Okay," I replied. All of you make your lists up and I'll set the recorder. It can't be that hard."

"Are you sure you don't want me to do it?" my nephew asked.

"Naw," I replied. "This gadget has to learn who's boss around here. I'll fix it all up."

And so it was that I set about punching buttons, twisting dials and programming the evening's entertainment. I noticed Kasper the cat was giving me the funny eye, but what did he know about machinery?

Shopping and supper all finished, we gathered around the tube to see how old Uncle Sam had done with his new toy. I tapped the play button gingerly, a beneficent smile on my lips, happy to provide good clean fun for the family.

The black and white image on the screen was that of Jimmy Cagney, looking mean and lean, getting ready to tough up a guy who didn't know any better than to mess with him. The music grew louder and more threatening as Cagney approached the screen.

"Do you know what I'm going to do to you?" he snarled.

PLUNK
"Oh, me," Charlie Brown said, soft jazz tinkling as he scratched his head. "What should I do Snoopy?"

"A Miracle on 34th Street..." "Whoa!" I exclaimed. "This can't be right, can it?"

"Wake up!" the wife nudged me. "You must be having a nightmare."

"Whew! Thanks," I said. "But now I'm wide awake."

"Why don't you watch some TV," Julie replied. "That ought to put you to sleep."

"No thanks," I shivered. "I think I'll just listen to the radio."

City searches for pollution policy

By Lee Cahill

VIRGINIA BEACH—The City of Virginia Beach is looking for a policy that would help protect its lakes and rivers from pollutants.

The matter came up during a recent discussion of a request for permission to encroach into a portion of a strip of property owned by the city along the shore of Lake Bradford. Harold A. Young had planned to install a private 15-inch storm drain to accommodate drainage from a proposed 18-unit condominium complex.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. asked about "possible pollutant runoff directly into Lake Bradford. He suggested requesting the applicant to install a filter. This is the sort of thing that was discussed at the first meeting of the Lynnhaven Water Quality Task Force, Jennings said.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said that "with all the experience we've had with Lynnhaven, these things should be a matter of policy."

Jennings agreed that a filter device should be required as part of the drainage system and a city inspection should be made annually.

By a vote of 11-0, Council deferred the request indefinitely to give Council a chance to come up with a policy that could be applied to all drainage systems.

Boulevard widening expected to begin in Spring of '85

VIRGINIA BEACH—Construction of the first phase of the Virginia Beach Boulevard widening to eight lanes is expected to begin in the spring, Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. recently announced.

Reporting as chairman of the Mayor's Ad Hoc Committee on Roads, McCoy said the process will be disrupting and will require an educational process to inform merchants and people living close to the Boulevard of the problems. He explained the city staff will have to reroute traffic and that some of the problems may be alleviated if crews did as much work as possible at night.

Removal of utilities will magnify the problem, McCoy added.

McCoy also said that the committee has recommended that a reasonable amount of the city's General Fund Balance surplus be used to finance less costly road projects. The balance is approximately $30 million.

The Committee, at a meeting earlier this month, also endorsed the road projects in the proposed Capital Improvement Plan.

McCoy said that the first phase of the Boulevard project, from Witchduck Road to Rosemont Road, was too far along to defer, so that the funds could be used on more urgent projects. He added, however, that later stages of the work may be deferred beyond the periods for which they are scheduled for more crucial projects. The entire project will cost approximately $42 million in 70 percent Federal, 25 percent state and five percent city funds.

The first phase will cost $15,911,200 with the city paying $1,576,500 in Charter Bonds.

The other two phases will continue the highway from Rosemont Road to Great Neck Road ($15,169,900), and from the city line at Newtown Road to Witchduck Road, ($11,039,600). If a later phase is deferred, which seems likely, the funds will be transferred to Constitution Drive, McCoy said that the State Department of Highways and Transportation seems to be willing to allow transfer of funds to other projects.

In answer to a question from Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr., McCoy replied that he did not believe that a bikeway was included in the project.

Councilman Robert G. Jones said that funds may be available for both Phase III of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Constitution Drive.

Rock Church rezoning okayed by Council

By Lee Cahill

City Council Reporter

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Rock Church, which almost a year ago was denied rezoning which would have permitted the location of an ambitious church-related development on a large agricultural tract off Indian River Road, has City Council's approval for recreational facilities on a 41-acre portion of the site.

Council Monday afternoon, by a vote of 10-0, (Councilman Robert Fentress was absent) granted Rock Ministries, Inc., a conditional use permit for recreational facilities of an outdoor nature including ball field, tennis courts and a concession stand at 2865 Indian River Road.

On December 19 of last year, Council denied rezoning applications from AG-1 and AG-2

Agricultural to R-1 Residential, H-1 Hotel, and B-2 Business districts for the larger parcel for church and related facilities for the college and university housing. The church activities now center in an area of Kempsville off Witchduck Road.

The applications were turned down because the proposed development was not considered compatible with the surrounding land uses of the area.

The applicant plans to develop the site with four ball fields, six tennis courts, a concession stand and parking for 160 cars.

Vincent Losciale, representing the applicant, said that the site is not approved for a septic tank, but that the applicant will work out a system approved by the Health Department.

Are 'thought processors' in City Council future?

By Lee Cahill

VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Beach City Council members who don't always find it convenient to enlist the help of the staff in the City Clerk's office during regular working hours may be getting some help.

Proposals have been received for "thought processing" systems from two companies—Dictaphone Corporation and Lanier Business Products, Inc.

The idea is for the Council members to dictate over the telephone into the machines at any time and for the staff to transcribe the information at their leisure.

But Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf questioned how much leisure the staff had. She said that it's fine to dictate over the machine, but a "human being" is still needed. She said she understood that the staff was overpowered with the normal work. She wanted to know who would do the work.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr., who thought up the idea of the "thought processors," said the City Clerk's staff would do the work.

"It's my understanding they were already overworked," Oberndorf replied.

She said that the city may still have to hire an additional "human being" although the purpose of the machines was to avoid the cost of additional personnel.

Jennings answered that the idea was to afford Council members an opportunity to dictate in off-hours information which the staff can transcribe at their leisure.

City Clerk Ruth H. Smith agreed with Oberndorf that if every member participated, her office would have to hire an extra person.

"We don't get support anyhow," said Oberndorf.

Mayor Harold Hesichober appointed Jennings and Robert G. Jones to a committee to discuss the proposal.

Jones said he could see the system as saving considerable time if he can accomplish his purpose merely by making a telephone call.

Jennings added that certain members of Council feel they are not able to get assistance on dictation and the like. The system would be less expensive than hiring additional staff. Prices of the systems range from $2,800 over $7,000.

Council members have in the past had concerns about clerical work in connection with their Council duties. No special staff or office space is provided for Council members. The mayor has an office and a secretary.

Capital Improvement $

Another speaker, Lou Pace, said he didn't know whether the city could afford the $28.6 million for the resort improvements, especially when $5.2 million in sewers for the area is extra. He also noted that $38 million seemed to be an astronomical figure for beach erosion and that the city might better spend the $5 million for air conditioning schools, or for a new school. He said that the $3 million needed for school roofing may indicate the city needs a new roof.

Pace's priorities were roads, mainly First Colonial, General Booth, and Shipp's Corner. He also questioned the wisdom of cutting off roads before tying them in with other roads.

He thought $1.3 million for the Lesner Bridge boat ramp was extravagant and said first priorities should be roads, schools and water.

Pace also wanted to know why the city was paying $69,230 an acre for a recreational site for open space which the Sajo Farms developer was required to include in his plan.

Van Cunningham suggested that Council try to increase its borrowing authority so that so many of its projects would not have to be submitted to referendum. He said that 54 percent of the CIP projects depend on referendum bonds. He added that no change has been made since 1974 in the city's spending limit, regarding general obligation bonds the city can spend without a referendum. Cunningham represented the Virginia Beach Council of the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce.

Cunningham also supported the implementation of the Resort improvement plan.

City's new ballet debuts

Koester is enthusiastic when she speaks of her charges. And they aren't even her students.

"They all study ballet elsewhere," Koester said. "We have our own performing outlet for Dance Atlantic students. But two of my dance mistresses, Brenda Warren and Noele O'Hara, work the New Dimensions students in classes and then they rehearse with me. The students put in ten hours of class time weekly and another six to ten in rehearsal."

Koester replaced Pilar Tapia as director of the city company. Tapia had headed the All-Cities Ballet Company, a predecessor to New Dimensions, for seven years.

"When I brought the students in I had to tell them that we weren't trying to brainwash them, or steal them away from their own schools. However, I told them they could only grow to a certain point without the space to grow into."

"I'm proud of them," Koester said. They've done very well for only five weeks together. We had a sneak preview of part of the show at the Holly Festival. Now we'll see how they do. And we have a surprise up our sleeve."

The New Dimensions Ballet Company is part of the Performing Arts arm of the City's Parks and Recreation Department, headed by Henry deShields, with Pam Riley serving as director of Youth Ac-

Sandbags for Sandbridge?

VIRGINIA BEACH—Sandbridge residents are continuing efforts to keep their sand and to attract or entrap more.

The Sandbridge Shore Life Protection organization has requested permission from the city to carry out several functions designed for a more sandy beach.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said the organization has requested a bulldozer permit, authority to use sandbags and permission to plant artificial seaweed.

She asked City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck to determine whether the city has the authority to permit these things.

Councilman John A. Baum remarked, "I think people think we can invent sand." He said the devices just push sand around.

On interest rates and tax increase

J. W. McLean, Chief Executive for Banks of Mid America, Inc. on the subject of interest rates and tax increases says:

"A new interest rate equilibrium may be taking shape with dislocations ahead in some sectors, both good and not so good," he said.

"They are all interrelated and few real changes are independent. Remember, too, that the Federal Reserve doesn't remain predictable very long."

There are those who see the Federal Reserve as so austere conscious that policies can be changed merely because the target of reducing the debt isn't being hit soon enough.

Dr. Richard Rahn, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said Reagan's most "critical problem" is to stem the growth rate of government spending.

He said a combination of budget cuts and economic growth could wipe out the federal debt by the end of the decade. He sides with the view of U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp, R-New York, and other supply-side economists that the president should resist compromise and continue to be adamant against tax increases.

"Those who argue for tax increases can't point to any time that a tax increase ever balanced the budget," he said. Higher taxes, he said, slow growth and tempt the government to spend the additional revenues.

He said a growth rate of 5.6 percent as he and Kemp advocate would raise the revenues to put the budget in balance by 1988. The 4 percent rate, which top administration officials believe can be achieved, would bring the budget in balance in 1993, he said.

Virginia Peanut exports reach seven year high

RICHMOND—Peanut exports from Virginia were 45 percent higher in October than in any month during the past seven years, according to William T. Baird, export marketing specialist with the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

Over thirteen million pounds of peanuts were shipped to eleven nations from Europe to the Far East with an estimated value of approximately $6 million. Baird indicated that an aggressive marketing campaign by the Virginia peanut industry overcame the condition of a strong U.S. dollar overseas and poor crop production due to last year's drought.

Baird said that while preliminary reports for November do not indicate a sales volume of this magnitude, the export market for Virginia peanuts remains strong.

SBA hot line popular with business owners

RICHMOND—Present and prospective small business owners in Virginia are still getting plenty of help from a free telephone hot line set up by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

During the fiscal year that ended September 30, the hot line—SBA's "Answer Desk"—received 41,416 calls, including 1130 from Virginia. Catherine Szucs, director of the Agency's office in Richmond, said recently.

The "SBA Answer Desk" is a toll free telephone number operated by information specialists in SBA's office of Advocacy in Washington, D.C.

The toll free number, not available in Alaska and Hawaii, is 800/368-5855. In Washington D.C., the number is 202-653-7561. SBA staff members are available to answer questions between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. EST Monday through Friday.

The "Answer Desk" was started in late 1982 to primarily help businesses in their dealings with government. Many "Answer Desk" inquiries relate to financial, management and procurement assistance available to small firms' in and out of government. "Answer Desk" also handles calls concerning small business innovation and research and calls asking for general information on how to start a business.

"We encourage present and prospective small business owners needing help with a government-related issue or facing other problems to call the "Answer Desk" if their local SBA office cannot answer the question, said Catherine Szucs.

Study looking for women with breast cancer

Medical tips

By Steve Weiss

BETHESDA, MD—"American women want to know their options for breast cancer treatment," said Peggie Findlay, M.D., of the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Maryland.

Dr. Findlay is conducting a study to compare two kinds of treatment for early-stage breast cancer. "When the research is completed, this important study will provide women with the scientific evidence they need to make better decisions about their breast cancer treatment," she explained. "Doctors are still not sure which form of therapy will be superior in the long run."

Cancer patients volunteering for this clinical trial are assigned at random by a computer to either of two treatments: lumpectomy, which removes only the cancerous lump, followed by radiation therapy, or mastectomy, which removes the breast. Mastectomy patients are also offered breast reconstruction. Patients who have cancer in the lymph nodes receive chemotherapy.

Dr. Peggie Findlay of the National Cancer Institute.

Many specialists at the National Cancer Institute work as a team to provide the patient with careful treatment and long-term followup. The team includes some of the world's leading cancer physicians,--radiation therapists, surgeons, medical oncologists, plastic surgeons,--and other health professionals such as physical therapists and psychologists.

The trial, the only one of its kind in the United States, is still accepting eligible women who want to participate. If you have a breast lump that is suspected to be cancer, or have just been diagnosed with breast cancer, but have not yet been treated, and you are interested in taking part in the study, call Dr. Findlay at the National Cancer Institute, 301-496-5457.

Christmas booklist

Moore's The Night Before Christmas (Knopf, 1984). In this edition the Caldicot Honor Book artist Anita Lobel has set the familiar poem in the late nineteenth century world of New York City. The effect is far different from the usual rural or pastoral versions. Here we have a Victorian Christmas alive with city scapes, brownstones, rooftops with chimneys and even the Brooklyn Bridge.

All three books are, deservedly, classics. I am sure that these new versions, illustrated by the talented Sendak, de Paola and Lobel, will find a place on your holiday book shelf.—Palmer.

Another look at December's skies

Sky Watch

A Monthly Feature Prepared By The Science Museum of Virginia

DECEMBER SKY CHARTS: To use these sky charts face either north or south and hold the charts directly in front of you with the horizon on the bottom. The charts show the brightest stars and planets between the horizon and the part of the sky directly overhead during the early evening hours this month.

CONSTELLATIONS: Orion, one of the brightest constellations in the winter sky, is beginning to rise above the southeastern horizon. This constellation, shaped like a large hour-glass, contains more bright stars than any other star group, with two stars of great brilliancy. These two stars are Betelgeuse and Rigel. Betelgeuse marks the right shoulder of Orion and Rigel is in the left foot. To the ancients, Orion resembled a hunter, with his club raised and a shield of lion skin pointed towards Taurus the bull.

Facing north, the three bright stars of the Summer Triangle — Vega, Deneb and Altair — are visible above the western horizon. In the east, the bright stars Capella, Castor and Pollux and Procyon are found.

PLANETS: In the evening sky, look for brilliant Venus and the red planet Mars. Venus, often seen as the Christmas Star, will be visible very low in the southwest just after sunset before disappearing beneath the horizon three hours later. Mars moves from Capricornus into Aquarius this month, and can be found just above the southern horizon at sunset.

By the end of the month, early morning viewers can expect to see Mercury and Saturn in the pre-dawn sky. Mercury will appear very low in the southeast just before sunrise and Saturn, rising about three hours before the sun, can also be found low in the southeast.

CELESTIAL EVENTS: During the early morning hours of December 14 and 15, look for meteors from one of the greatest showers of the year. These are the Geminid meteors, fragments of a once-magnificent, but now-demolished comet. The meteors will be visible throughout the night, at first in the east, then swinging around to the west in the morning.

And how! Perhaps the shoppers at Lynnhaven Mall on a recent December afternoon were not quite as speedy as Sun photographer Dave Olson's lens pictures them to be, but we'll bet things are moving very briskly these days at all area shopping centers.

New bureaucracy?

Council okays $ for Resort Commission

By Lee Cahill
VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon, by a vote of 9-2, appropriated $1,862,805 for the remainder of fiscal year 1985 for the immediate action program proposed by the Resort Area Advisory Commission.

But first, members expressed some reservations about creating a new bureaucracy in the organization of a commission staff which will cost the city $289,715 annually.

A full-time staff was recommended by the Commission which left to the city manager's discretion how the staff would be employed.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck said that since the staff includes seven full-time positions, he could not assign present staff members to the job. Vice Mayor Reba McClanan said she could not support all the additional support staff "creating a whole bureaucracy." She and Councilwoman Barbara Henley voted against the motion.

The staff would be necessary until the project was completed, Muehlenbeck said, and some positions, such as the code enforcement coordinator, would have to be continued.

Christmas in Old Virginia

A history of manners and custom

By Hubert J. Davis
Special To The Sun

A howling snowstorm trapped Captain John Smith and his band of men at Kecoughtan on Christmas 1618. This prevented their celebrating Christmas at Jamestown. But a group of Powhatan's friendly Indians prepared a Christmas feast for them.

"We never were more merre, nor fedde on more plentie of good oysters, fish, wild foule, and good bread," according to Captain John Smith. So the first English Christmas in Virginia happened to be a "merre Christmas."

Twilight deepened. The light of the short December day faded in to cold stillness of Christmas eve 1619. A blanket of snow covered the little village of Jamestown.

The season for merriment and worship had arrived. All work stopped. The hardy English colonists, hustled about decorating their modest homes and place of worship with bayberry, cedar, pine cones, holly, seeds and nuts. In their homes, as was the English custom, they placed a bowl of wassail on the dining table and nestled it in a ring of cedar, holly and pine cones.

Wrapped snugly in their winter cloaks, on Christmas morning they trudged into the tiny church and settled to listen to their minister. No doubt he read from the New Testament the story of the birth of Christ and explained to them how Christians was a celebration of the nativity.

Soon after church they sat down to a Christmas feast. The scent of pine and the aroma of bayberry candles mingled with the odors of woodfires and freshly baked foods. Their tables were heaped with venison, wild fowl and oysters.

This began a season of playing games, hunting, and being merry through the twelfth night. Thus Jamestown settlers observed the first real Christmas in America and set the pattern for Christmases in Virginia throughout the Colonial period in Virginia.

These Cavaliers were unlike their Puritan neighbors in Boston and New England who suppressed Christmas celebrations because they objected to their pagan origins. In 1619 the Massachusetts Colony passed a law forbidding any celebration and imposed a fine of five shillings on anyone violating this law. Even in 1711 Cotton Mather still preached against Christmas celebrations and it was not until after 1837 when Georgia had repealed her laws against Christmas celebrations that such festivities became universally legal in America.

During the next one and one-half centuries restless Englishmen, along with immigrants from other countries established homes and plantations throughout Virginia. The first settlers had been joined by a new set of people with new forms of religion, and new customs. These people soon adopted many of the English Christmas customs, but continued to observe those of their own heritage.

After Governor Spotswood had explored the uninhabited Shenandoah Valley in 1716, William Berkley established a great estate near the present city of Staunton and on a mountain, a tract near the present site of Waynesboro. Joist Hite, a Pennsylvania Dutchman, obtained a huge tract of land in what is now Frederick County. These men offered favorable inducements to people to settle in this area. With huge populations flowing through Shenandoah Valley on their exploration and settlements of the west and northwest, many took advantage of the rich lands available in the Shenandoah Valley and settled there.

From the mansions at Greenway Court and Belvoir the Fairfaxes presided over what is now Frederick and Clarke Counties. George Washington, the Fairfaxes' neighbor and relative by marriage, settled at Mt. Vernon after the American Revolution. John Patton, and his son-in-law, John Buchanan, Dr. Thomas Walker, and many other men destined to play important roles in Virginia's early history settled nearby in the Shenandoah Valley.

Around 1780, as the winter solstice approached, one bleak snowy day slid past another. The hard work of harvesting, storing, canning, and hog-killing went on everywhere. People had been busy for weeks preparing for what George Washington termed

Council recommends down-zoning "line"

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Planning Commission Monday afternoon recommended down-zoning south of the "green line."

City Council, however, postponed action on down-zoning until January 7, when it will be considered with a resolution on adopting the Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

The vote for down-zoning was close—6-5. Voting in favor of down-zoning were S. S. Atkinson, J. Dockery, H. D. Graham, R. J. LaClaire, Nancy Parker, and A. W. Balko, chairman. Voting against the proposal were Kenneth D. Barefoot, J. E. Snyder, D. S. Reid, Thomas Ammons III and C. R. Crummell.

The Planning Commission has already recommended approval of the new Comprehensive Plan. Council had decided to wait for the Planning Commission's recommendation on down-zoning before adopting the Plan and another Council workshop in the Comprehensive Plan is scheduled for Thursday.

Taking up the resolution on the plan at the tail end of a very long meeting, Council deferred a decision on down-zoning, and subsequently on the Plan, until January 7.

Also deferred was a resolution requested by Councilman Robert G. Jones referring to the Planning Commission for study suggestions for planning by Grover C. Wright Jr., an attorney who is frequently before Council on zoning issues.

Immediately after making its decision on down-zoning the Planning Commission started to consider each of the 196 parcels that would be involved. The parcels are included in 4332.86 acres south of the "green line" which are zoned for development—that is, zoning categories other than agricultural.

Taking the first five parcels listed, the Commission immediately hit a snag. Some members thought they did not know enough about the individual parcels to consider the down-zoning. A motion to defer consideration of down-zoning each parcel for at least 30 days passed by a vote of 8-3 with Dockery, Graham and Parker dissenting.

For down-zoning to become a reality, City Council will have to approve it. Therefore, Councilman John A. Baum asked why, if Council ends up voting against down-zoning should the Planning Commission have to go through the process of considering 196 parcels?

Mayor Harold Heischouer said that he "can't see them doing anything much between now and January 7." Council approved the deferral unanimously.

Nineteen people had spoken during the public hearing earlier, most against down-zoning. Most of those opposed were concerned with their own economic losses and a number of attorneys representing developers or land owners assured Council they would end up suing the city.

The public hearing held jointly by the Council and Commission was an unusual and often confusing session. Additional chairs for the Planning Commission placed among the Council seats had inadvertently been removed so that the Commission sat in the audience until the chairs were replaced. Heischouer also allowed no interchange between the speakers and the Council and Commission.

Council approves holiday time

By Lee Cahill

VIRGINIA BEACH—City employees of Virginia Beach will have full-day holidays on December 24, Christmas Eve, and December 31, New Year's Eve. Councilman John A. Baum went further. After the holidays were announced Monday evening, he said that "in the spirit of the season I'd like to give the press the rest of the month off."

In reply to a question from Councilwoman Barbara Henley, City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck said that refuse collectors receive additional compensation for working on the holidays.

Muehlenbeck said that police officers and firefighters who have to work on the holidays also get additional credit.

City Clerk Ruth Smith also read a resolution saying that all employees will benefit and are "grateful to members of the Governing Body for providing time...to take advantage of all the economic privileges to enhance the tax revenue of our city."

The resolution ordains "a spirit of good will toward men and each other and anyone convicted to violating the spirit of the season will be sentenced to one year of regret."

One of the delights of this novel is the freedom the individual elves have to find their own roles in life. Many of the female elves are hunters or warriors. A moving episode in the story occurs when a gentle elf, Redlance whose magic lies in the nurturing of plants, is forced to defend the children in battle. Another nice touch is that the

Down-zoning of "green line" is approved

Most of the speakers opposed down-zoning. Many of these were attorneys representing the special interests of developers and landowners in the southern part of the city where the rezoning would take place.

Michael Savvides, chairman of the Virginia Beach Council of the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce, reiterated the Council's stand against down-zoning, citing the possible litigation and damage awards that would result. He said it was the most severe method for controlling growth and may not be necessary.

Growth, he said, would be controlled by the availability of city services.

Walt Vargo, of the Council of Civic Organizations, spoke in favor of down-zoning. He said that down-zoning is the only way to preserve the "green line." He said the most people will take a chance with litigation.

Maxine Graham, of Sandbridge, is also opposed. She said she owned parcels on Sandbridge Road approximately .6 miles from the oceanfront and also represented the owners of another lot. She said her property can't be developed until it gets city sewer.

On the no-question rule, she said she was denied questions at two previous meetings. "I feel like we're really being jerked around," she said. Two other speakers withdrew because they had wanted to ask questions.

Helen Love, of Pungo, said that if growth is to be delayed, down-zoning must take place. She said that there is no guarantee that an investor will make greater returns. "If you have a lemon, dump it."

the "approaching festival." Ladies had supervised cooking, canning, and filling the larders. Some sewed winter clothing, while grandmothers knitted mittens, hose and sweaters.

The ring of axes ceased. Men had stored logs in endless piles for the indoor fires. Children and women had gathered holly, mistletoe, laurel and cedar to decorate the homes and church. People went about decorating much as the first settlers had done at Jamestown in 1619. The plantation mansions at Greenway Court, Belvoir, Mt. Vernon and Beverley Manor, with their Christmas trimmings and guests in elegant dress of the period promised an exciting holiday. The homes of the less affluent, such as the Pattons, Buchanans and Walkers, babbled with the excited voices of happy people. Even the humblest families in log cabins observed Christmas with their own customs and within their means. For those in the mansions and the humble cabins alike, Christmas was their major holiday, one of joy, hope and work.

ship. All would celebrate lightly heartedly from Christmas through twelfth night. This would be their season for visiting and homecoming. Friends, relatives and neighbors would arrive from near and far on foot, horseback, by wagon or by splendid coach. Many would come expecting to remain for several days. Everyone would entertain at sometime during the twelve days of festivities. Every house would offer food and drink. The wine glasses and the punch cups would click time and again in drinking to each other's health. There would be an abundance of apple cider. Wassail bowls would foam with white capped egg-nog.

To those who celebrated Christmas in the traditional English manner, bringing in the yulelog was an important custom. Men went out and carefully selected just the right log for the mansion. In the less affluent homes the yule fire burned from a large root or stump. They placed holly on top of the yulelog and carried it ceremoniously to the mansion where they left it on the porch through Christmas eve. Each of the girls in the household would go to the log, close her eyes, and make a wish. Of course this wish was supposed to come true.

On Christmas morning they placed the yulelog in the fireplace and then brought out a package of charred coals which had been saved from the embers of the last year's log. They placed these embers under the log. Then each girl in the household would take turns holding a lighted candle to the embers until they caught fire, which in turn soon ignited the yulelog.

As the yulelog burned, each member of the family would cast a piece of holly on the fire. They believed that this would burn away their misfortunes of the past year. They kept the log burning during the whole twelve day festival. When they extinguished it they stored some of the unburned embers to kindle the next year's yulelog.

On Christmas morning most of the people in Shenandoah Valley started off their Christmas celebration with the traditional oyster breakfast. This is a custom observed here so old that it cannot be traced. This breakfast may feature Chesapeake oysters on half shell, steamed, fried or roasted oysters or oyster chowder.

Most people regard Christmas as a holy day. The French Huguenots, for instance, celebrated Christmas only as a religious holiday. Most people attend church on Christmas day. George Washington and his family always adhered to this custom.

Christmas dinner followed after Christmas church service. It came from the burning fireplace or the maw of wood-burning stoves which poured forth tantalizing food odors. The cuisine of this period was extravagant. The dinner would feature roast turkey, pheasant pie, baked ham, venison, scalloped oysters, sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, breads, butter, and fruit cake. Turkey and baked ham had completely replaced the traditional English roast pig, and

Winter begins this Friday

RICHMOND—Cold weather may already be in the forecast for most areas of Virginia, but the season of winter doesn't officially arrive until 11:23 a.m. EST on Friday, December 21. This is the moment when the sun reaches its southernmost point in the sky marking the winter solstice.

According to Dr. Paul H. Knappenberger, Jr., director of the Science Museum of Virginia, "on this day the sun is seen directly overhead at noon on the Tropic of Capricorn. The north pole of the earth is also tipped as far away from the sun as possible which means that the sun will be above the horizon for the shortest amount of time this year, followed by the longest night."

On the first day of winter, the sun traces its lowest path across the sky and is above the horizon for the shortest amount of time this year. The highest the sun will climb in Virginia skies is about 30 degrees above the horizon while at the Arctic circle the sun will just touch the horizon at noon and the night will be 20 hours long.

The full moon nearest the winter solstice is appropriately referred to as "Long Night Moon." Since the moon's location in the sky is always opposite the sun, the moon at the time of winter solstice is near its northernmost point and can be seen rising far north of east. During the evening, it will make a long sweep from northeast to northwest, lingering in the sky for up to 16 hours.

Movies for children

"Feather in the Cap" and "Harold's Fairy Tale" will make up a movie program for children of all ages on Friday, December 21, at 4 p.m. in the Windsor Woods Area Library. This program will last approximately 30 minutes. Children and parents may learn more about this film program by calling the library at 546-1043.

"Fox Went Out on a Chilly Night", "Hamster from Hamsterdam" and "Steadfast Tin Soldier" will be shown for children of all ages on Saturday, December 22, at 11 a.m. in the Great Neck Area Library. This program will last approximately 45 minutes. Children and parents may learn more about this program by calling the library at 481-6094.

different elf tribes have evolved into different racial types. Prejudice and its unlearning are major themes of the book. Still, perhaps, the best aspect of this four volume novel remains its art work. The individual pictures are exquisite and the variety of page formats have been used creatively to unite the different threads of the story. Fans of both fantasy and comic books will hope this is only the beginning of many such novels.—Caywood.

Virginia Seafood of course!

For most of us Christmas dinner will be turkey, ham or rib roast. Then for a week or so after that, there are leftovers served in many different forms.

So how about a seafood chowder for Christmas Eve or one of the days that follow? This is a great recipe from The Great Taste of Virginia Seafood, A Cookbook and Guide to Virginia Waters, GB Publishing, Hampton, Virginia, 1984.

Pearl Harbor survivors to meet in Virginia Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Pearl Harbor Survivors Association will hold its December 1988 national reunion in Virginia Beach, it was announced by Hugh Barton, manager of the city's Convention Bureau.

In making the announcement, Barton said: "Virginia Beach is proud to have been chosen to host this prestigious association and will go all out to help make the reunion a memorable occasion."

He acknowledged the significant role played by John Korba in bringing the 1988 reunion to Virginia Beach. Korba, a Virginia Beach resident, is president of the association's Tidewater chapter.

The reunion is expected to attract nearly 3,000 survivors and family members, according to Barton, and will be a mid-winter boost to the city's hospitality industry.

A $3.4 million addition

VBGH opens center

VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Beach General Hospital opened the Birthing Center on December 10. According to a spokesman for the hospital, The Birthing Center, a $3.4 million addition to the hospital, is among the most sophisticated birthing centers in the United States, and Virginia's most advanced operation of its type.

In planning the Center, hospital administrators and physicians studied leading birthing centers in the country. "We incorporated the best aspects of the centers we studied into our own birthing center, along with suggestions from parents and expectant parents. What we've developed through research and design is one of the top birthing centers in the nation, said W. Earl Willis, president of VBGH.

"The basic concept behind the Center is to create a medically advanced maternity facility within a home-like environment. We designed and furnished rooms with the family in mind. Rooms feature the comforts of home with a Williamsburg-inspired decor. All medical equipment is enclosed in attractive cabinets until it is needed," said Willis.

The Center features seven Labor-Delivery-Recovery (L-D-R) Rooms where mothers will labor, deliver and recover in the same room and bed. The rooms include such amenities as a television, rocking chair, easy chair, night table, cradle, music and shower.

There are two high-risk Labor Rooms for mothers needing C-Sections or experiencing deliveries with complications.

The Center houses seven Nurseries including: a Neonatal Intensive Care Nursery, an Isolation Nursery and an Observation Nursery.

The Birthing Center will offer all available birthing options, including: C-Section, Bradley, Lamaze, Le Boyer, Traditional and use of the Birthing Chair. Lounges and accommodations for parenting partners and family members are ample and spacious.

The completion of The Birthing Center is the latest in a series of accomplishments in VBGH's new construction and renovation program. Upon completion in 1985, Virginia Beach General Hospital will be one of the leading health care facilities in the Southeast.

A brighter and better Christmas

Real Estate
By Roger Pyle

I am harkening, not so fondly back, to the Christmas of 1981. For almost the entire year I had been making my way to the Subdivision and, at that Christmas, the snow was high around the door of the model. The interest rates were even higher! Home buyers were more scarce than prereformed Scrooge's Christmas gifts. Unemployment was rampant—money, enterprise, nor projects were moving. It was a bleak time but we got through it. I look around today and see many laborers driving nails, wielding trowels and many homebuyers shopping for the best location and the best product. I am very grateful for the combination of events that got us through those bleak times, not the least of which was the hard working Real Estate person, and I am thankful for the comparative good times that we now enjoy.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

System needed for tax refunds

VIRGINIA BEACH—Citizens entitled to refunds should know about it.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf specifically referred to the pro-ration of personal property taxes. She said that although taxpayers are entitled to a refund when a vehicle is sold during the year, few know this or how to go about getting the refund. The responsibility rests with the taxpayers.

Oberndorf said Monday afternoon that although the city may have no legal responsibility to let the people know, it has a moral responsibility to inform the people.

She asked the city staff to look into ways this could be done and to determine whether an ordinance would be necessary.

"Green line" controversial issue

Rae LeSesne, in favor of down-zoning, charged that the situation is chaotic and that the city has continued to ignore long-range planning.

He referred to a "meeting" of Heischober with two other members of the Planning Commission which drew an angry reaction from Heischober.

"You are accusing me of something," Heischober said. He said that while the Planning Commission meeting was going on some members walked into his office during their break. "You be careful what you say," he admonished.

LeSesne said that he heard a TV report that it was a meeting. "We have to depend on TV and the press," LeSesne said.

As LeSesne went back to his statement, he said, "I've lost my place."

"You may lose more than that," Heischober said.

LeSesne continued to speak of "better timing for the mammoth meeting, the possible leak to the press of a private and confidential legal report on down-zoning, and a chattel government that pulls, pushes and shoves the city.

"If we're going to play games with planning, do away with it," he said.

Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. said that the talk was more like a campaign speech than a public hearing. "I believe we're getting out of line," he said.

Attorney Robert Cromwell asked whether the Commission followed the Planning Department guidelines to make a detailed analysis of each parcel. He said to have two weeks to do all this is ridiculous. He said there is no way any planning commission can make a careful study in that time.

Parker said that if the commissioners were not prepared they had not done their homework. She said she was "tired of sitting here wasting time..."

Graham said that he didn't believe that after 30 days the commissioners would be more knowledgeable.

Happy Chanukkah to each and everyone

Christmas in the colony

the fruit cake had taken the place of the plum pudding. There would be an abundance of apple cider. Syllabub, beer, ale or wines would be available to wash the dinner down.

Each home often had its own favorite preparation for Christmas. For instance, Thomas Jefferson, who feasted people of both great minds and appetites, had his own recipe for oyster pie. He also served Virginia claret wine, a product which he was the first to develop from the Norton grape. He observed Christmas and New Year with feasts worthy of both the occasion and his position.

Martha Washington had many of her own specialties. But she prized her "great cake" most highly. The recipe called for forty eggs; four pounds of butter; four pounds of sugar; five pounds of flour; five pounds of fruits; one-half pint each of wine and brandy. Few people today, outside an army kitchen or a big restaurant would have either a pan or stove large enough to accommodate a cake. Another of Martha's prized specialties was her capon stuffed with oysters.

George Washington's speciality was his egg-nog. His recipe called for one quart of milk; one quart of cream; one dozen eggs; one pound of sugar; one pint of brandy; one pint of rye and one pint of rum. To all of this one could add his own spices or flavoring.

After lighting the yulelog, attending church and having Christmas dinner, the time had arrived to begin compressing a whole year of news, amusement, gossip and story telling into the two-week Christmas festival. Often they followed Sir Walter Scott's motto:

"Heap more wood, the wind is chill, But let it whistle as it will, We'll keep our Christmas still."

As the yulelog burned, smiling friends and family members would gather around the hearth. The men would light their clay pipes and prop their feet on the fender. They drank syllabub and cider. They cracked nuts. They watched shadows dance on the walls while someone told ghost stories and stories heard around the war campfires.

Legends of St. Francis and the the season Christmas creche

One of the most common sights at Christmastime is the creche, or manger, holding the figure of the Infant Jesus.

There are many charming legends associated with the holiday season; one of the best-known is the legend of the Christmas rose.

According to the story, a young girl followed the shepherds to the stable in Bethlehem. Learning of the Christ Child's birth, she longed to go in and worship Him, but felt ashamed because she had no gift to offer Him.

Tears of disappointment fell from her eyes and as they touched the ground, a bush sprang up, bearing a beautiful white rose. Joyfully, the young girl picked the rose and took it in to lay before the Infant.

The legend of the Glastonbury thorn involves Joseph of Arimathea, who journeyed to Britain after the death of Christ. Coming to the town of Glastonbury, Joseph sat down to rest, thrusting his staff into the ground. It immediately took root and gave forth branches and green leaves. Every year after that, the thorn tree would bloom at Christmas.

Most churches feature large nativity scenes and many a home has its own small creche during the holidays. Nativity scenes such as this are so much a part of the season that we assume that they have always been so.

Actually, it was not until the 13th century that the creche came into usage. St. Francis of Assisi is generally credited with originating the custom. According to tradition, the gentle friar was staying near the town of Greccio, when he became inspired with the idea of recreating the first Christmas. Biographers say that he instructed a friend, "If you desire that we should celebrate this year's Christmas together at Greccio, go quickly and prepare what I tell you; for I want to enact the memory of the Infant who was born at Bethlehem, and how He was deprived of all the comforts babies enjoy; how He was bedded in the manger on hay, between an ass and an ox."

So it was that on Christmas Eve, the people of Greccio came to a spot in the woods near the town, where they found a manger filled with hay, and an ox and an ass next to it. Here Francis preached his Christmas sermon, filled with love for the Infant Jesus.

Legend has it that a member of the congregation saw a baby in the manger that night and that afterward, villagers took hay from the manger and gave it to their ailing animals, who promptly recovered.

Another version of this tradition says that St. Francis had a young woman and her baby represent Mary and the Infant Jesus. He placed hay about the church altar where the woman and child sat, and led an ox and an ass down the aisle of the church to take their place as part of the tableau. The villagers were delighted with this living representation of the nativity, and was only a matter of time before such tableaux were translated into lovingly carved manger scenes.

Today, they are universal reminders of that very first Christmas, inspiring devotion to the little Christ Child.

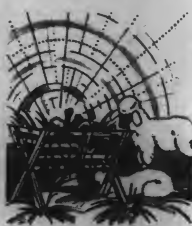

Another legend tells of the poor shoemaker who lived on the edge of a village, near the woods. Each night he would place a candle in his window to guide travelers.

Miraculously, that candle light never wavered, inspiring others to place candles in their windows at Christmas time.

A beautiful legend explains the fir tree's association with Christmas. It seems that a young boy came knocking at the door of a forester's hut one stormy Christmas Eve. The forester's son gladly gave up his bed so that the exhausted child could sleep.

The next morning, the family heard angels singing and discovered that their guest had been transformed into the Christ Child. In gratitude for the family's hospitality, the Child broke off a branch from a fir tree and planted it in the ground, promising that it would always be green at Christmas time.

A poor man's heart through half

Footprints in the sand

One night I had a dream. I was walking along the beach with the Lord, and across the skies flashed scenes from my life.

In each scene, I noticed two sets of footprints in the sand. One was mine, and one was the Lord's.

When the last scene of my life appeared before me, I looked back at the footprints in the sand, and, to my surprise, I noticed that many times along the path of my life there was only one set of footprints. And I noticed that it was at the lowest and saddest times of my life.

I asked the Lord about it: "Lord, you said that once I decided to follow you, you would walk with me all the way. But I notice that during the most troublesome times in my life, there is only one set of footprints. I don't understand why you left my side when I needed you most."

The Lord said: "My precious child, I never left you during your time of trial. Where you see only one set of footprints, I was carrying you."

Coleman Nursery, located in the Churchland section in Portsmouth, is home to the well-known and beloved Winter Wonderland. Inside, children of all ages find dozens mechanical figurines in Christmas scenes, as well as three Christmas shops and a candy store. Outside, are a manager scene, Mike's Trainland and Santa's House.

Another feature of the nursery is, of course, plants, shrubbery and other leafy materials. At Christmas time, though, the big-seller is Christmas trees, and Coleman is prepared. Long-time Coleman employee Pappy Ratcliffe ties a just-sold tree to the trunk of a satisfied customer's car.

Wassail bowl

If you give the customary toast at holiday time, you are carrying on a tradition going back hundreds of years, to the wassail bowl.

At that time, the daughter of a German chieftain offered a gold cup filled with wine to the host of a reception held in her father's honor. She told the host, "Waes haef blaod Cynig," or "Be of health, Lord King."

The practice of drinking a wassail quickly became popular. Those who could not afford the fine wines of nobility used hot oil, sugar, nutmeg and ginger, topped with toasted bread. Gradually, a drink to one's health became known as a toast!

Rosemary bush

The herb, rosemary, has been associated with Christmas for centuries. Legend has it that on the way to Egypt, Mary washed the Baby Jesus' clothes and spread them over a rosemary bush to dry in the sun.

That is how the rosemary bush got its lovely fragrance, according to the legend.

The Yule log

The yule log ceremony originated in Scandinavia, according to scholars. In ancient celebrations of the solstice, huge logs were blessed and burned in the hope that they would forever bring light, warmth and comfort.

Christmas 1608

"Wind, raine, frost and snow caused us to keepe Christmas amongst the S. vages, where wee were never more merrie, nor fedde on more plentie of good oysters, fish, flesh, wild foule, and good bread, nor never had better fires in England. . ."

Thus John Smith described the few days he and his men spent with the natives at the end of December, 1608, when he was seeking provisions from the Indian chief, Powhatan.

From stately saint to jolly gent:

How St. Nicholas became Santa Claus!

" 'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the house. . ."

So begins one of the most famous poems in the English language, one that has influenced American tradition greatly. For it is because of Dr. Clement Clarke Moore's "The Visit of St. Nicholas" that we enjoy our concept of Santa today.

In his classic poem, Moore described St. Nicholas as having "a broad face, and a little round belly that shook when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly. He was chubby and plump — a right jolly old elf."

This picture of a jolly and plump fellow is a far cry from the stately St. Nicholas of Europe, where the tradition of a holiday gift-giving actually began.

Little is known about St. Nicholas other than that he was born in Asia Minor and eventually became a much-loved archbishop of Myra, where he died in the year 324.

After his death, numerous legends sprang up about his charitable deeds, especially in regard to children. He became the patron saint of boys and girls, and his feast day, December 6th, became the occasion for giving children small gifts of toys or gingerbread. The association of St. Nicholas with gift-giving probably came about through a legend that credited him with bestowing money upon a penniless nobleman who had three daughters to marry off, but no dowries with which to do so.

The Church, seeking a way to Christianize pagan customs, turned to St. Nicholas for assistance. For the giving of presents during the winter months is an ancient tradition. The Romans exchanged gifts during their Saturnalia festival in December, and the people of Northern Europe had the god Woden, who brought gifts to them in the middle of winter, as well as Berchta, the hearth goddess, who paid visits to homes in December.

Thus, St. Nicholas became the Christian replacement for both Woden and Berchta, although vestiges of the latter are still in evidence with the Italian Befana and the Russian Bobouschka.

Accordingly, a new ritual came into being: on the eve of his feast day, St. Nicholas was supposed to ride across the sky on a white or pale grey horse, just as Woden and Berchta had done in pre-Christian lore.

For the good child, the saint brought gifts; for the naughty youngster, there were rods and switches. Retaining aspects of Berchta, he was still associated with the hearth in various ways. Either the children's shoes or stockings would be placed there, or hay or grain would be left there for his horse. And, he was accompanied by a decidedly pagan-like creature. Sometimes this small, ugly elf or dwarf was given the task of sliding down the chimney, a feat too undignified for the good saint.

With the reformation, St. Nicholas came to be supplanted by the Christ Child as a gift-giver in Protestant Europe. And, with the demise of St. Nicholas' Day, gifts began to arrive on Christmas Eve.

There were many other substitutions for St. Nicholas, such as Pere Noel in France and Knecht Ruprecht in Bavaria and Austria.

But, in Holland, St. Nicholas still retained his popularity, for which our modern-day Santa can be thankful. For it was the Dutch who brought St. Nicholas to the New World in 1624. They called him Sinter Klaes.

In 1809, Washington Irving vividly described St. Nicholas as the patron saint of the Dutch colony of New Amsterdam. He wrote of the saint's annual ride over the tree tops in a wagon filled with gifts.

We can only surmise that Dr. Moore had read Irving's popular history containing the account of St. Nicholas. For instead of describing the saint as tall and stately, Moore echoed Irving's description of him as a sturdy Dutchman who smoked a pipe.

Moore was also probably inspired by an illustration published in 1821, showing St. Nicholas in a sleigh pulled by one reindeer.

Moore's poem was published in 1823 and many years later, Thomas Nast, the well-known illustrator, gave us his version of St. Nicholas, based on Moore's poem. However, he called the jolly gent Santa Claus.

Through the years, successive illustrators have added other dimensions to Santa's appearance until he has become totally unrecognizable from the tall and dignified St. Nicholas who preceded him.

Although their appearance may differ greatly, Santa Claus and St. Nicholas do have several traits in common; they both love children and they both love to give presents!

St. Lucia's Day

In Sweden, the Christmas season is ushered in on December 13th by "St. Lucia." In reality, she is the eldest daughter of the family.

Dressed in white and wearing a wreath with candles on her head, she brings coffee and cakes to the other members of the family.

On this same day, young Swedish men and women wearing long, white robes serenade their friends and bring them refreshments. Called Lucis, brides and Star boys, the young women carry candles and the young men carry silver stars.

Christmas in America: a feast of sights, sounds

In a small town in South Dakota, the nativity pageant is reenacted in a real barn; hundreds of miles away in historic Williamsburg, a colonial Christmas is recreated, complete with cannon blasts.

Such is the richness and variety of Christmas in America, reflecting its multi-ethnic origins and providing a feast of sights and sounds for the holiday season.

Let's begin our Christmas tour in Los Angeles, where a large Mexican-American community has kept alive the tradition of Las Posadas. Here, Mary and Joseph's search for lodging is reenacted for 9 successive nights, ending in a celebration of singing and holiday treats, including the breaking of the piñata.

Far to the north in Alaska, Eskimo boys and girls carry a brightly colored star from home to home all during Christmas week. After they have sung a few carols, they are invited in for treats. Pre-Christian games dating back to the time of the winter solstice are also part of Christmas celebrations in this state.

To the south, in Florida, the palm tree replaces the traditional evergreen as a symbol of Christmas. Recalling the palms of the Holy Land, Floridians decorate their palms with lights and other adornments to great effect.

In Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, the "Christmas City of America," the central event of the season is the Love Feast that is celebrated in the Moravian church on Christmas Eve. During the service, the children in attendance are served sweet buns and coffee, and then are given lighted beeswax candles.

Later, the Christmas Eve vigil is held, culminating with lighted candles being served to the entire congregation, in a dazzling spectacle of light.

In New York City, the plaza at Rockefeller Center is famed for its illuminated tree and its ice skating exhibitions. The whole city takes on a festive mood, as department stores outdo each other with elaborate, animated displays.

Symbolic of the Christmas spirit in America is the lighting of the Christmas tree on the White House lawn. Here, crowds gather to "ooh" and "aah" as the great tree lights up. Spectators join in singing beloved carols, as the holiday season comes once again to our nation.

Hanukkah holiday a happy occasion

At this time of the year, Jewish children eagerly look forward to Hanukkah, known also as the Festival of Lights. In addition to commemorating an important victory in Jewish history — the revolt of the Maccabees against the Hellenistic Syrians — it is also an occasion of joyous celebration.

Central to this holiday is the lighting of the menorah, the traditional Jewish candelabrum in memory of that successful rebellion and also to remind the faithful of a miracle that occurred in connection with that event.

When the Jewish Temple was reclaimed by the Maccabees, only a cruse of sacramental oil was found with which to light the Temple lamp; enough to last only one day. Incredibly, the oil lasted 8 full days, allowing time for other oil to be prepared.

Today, the menorah is lighted each night in Jewish homes for 8 successive nights during Hanukkah, recalling the wondrous events of over 2000 years ago.

In addition to the religious aspects of Hanukkah, it is a time for festivities. Traditional gifts of Hanukkah gelt, or money, are made at this time, as well as the more modern-day presents, and special dishes are prepared for holiday dinners as families gather together.

At these celebrations, youngsters especially enjoy spinning the dreidel, an ancient, four-sided top that adds its own special merriment to the holiday known as Hanukkah.

Silent Night

One of the most loved carols of the season is "Silent Night." The story of how it was written is an inspiring one.

The time was 1818, in the little village of Oberndorf in the Austrian Alps. The church organist had just given Father Joseph Mohr some bad news: The organ was broken. There would be no music for the Christmas service.

That evening, Father Mohr visited the home of a woodcutter whose wife had just given birth to a baby. The young priest was deeply moved by the sight of the mother and her newborn babe.

As he trudged home through the snow, the stillness of the starry night and the surrounding scene inspired him. Hurrying home, he wrote down the words to a poem that was forming in his mind.

The next morning, Mohr's friend, Franz Gruber, agreed to write music for the poem, music that could be played on the guitar.

That Christmas Eve, "Silent Night" was sung to the accompaniment of a guitar. Later, some child singers would perform it for the King and Queen. The song quickly became a favorite and today it is sung all over the world.

How the mice turned back the Christmas clocks

One Christmas Eve, Santa was very late in arriving at the little village of Snowflake, the last stop on his annual trip around the world.

Fortunately, all the children of the village were asleep, so they didn't know that Santa had been delayed.

As the village slept, animals gathered at the town square to discuss the situation. It was almost 6 o'clock, the hour when the children traditionally arose on Christmas morning.

"There are going to be some pretty disappointed youngsters around here," commented the calico cat. "You can say that again," growled the German shepherd. You see, on Christmas Eve all the animals of the village would forget about their usual rivalries and speak to each other.

Just then, a robin landed on the square. "Santa's on his way!" he chirped. The animals barked, meowed, squealed, and crowed over this good news.

"Wait a minute," grunted the pig. "It may be too late. The children will be getting up soon."

"If we could only keep them in bed a little longer," whimpered the horse. But how, the animals wondered.

Suddenly, a field mouse squeaked excitedly. "I know! We'll go into all the houses and turn back all the clocks!"

The animals applauded this idea, and soon all the field mice of the village were scurrying into homes and clambering up the clocks. They moved back all the hands a half hour, just enough time for Santa to finish his rounds.

It wasn't long before Santa did arrive. When he heard about what the field mice had done, he laughed heartily and thanked them. Then he went to work putting presents under every tree.

Just as the clocks began to strike six, Santa climbed into his sleigh and flew off, waving goodbye to the animals of the village.

As the children happily opened their presents, the animals settled down for a nap. They were tired from waiting up all night for Santa, and the field mice were the most tired of all!

Heap on more wood! the wind is chill;
But let it whistle as it will,
We'll keep our Christmas merry still.

— Sir Walter Scott

Twelfth-night ends Christmas season in some countries

For many cultures, the Christmas holidays are not over until after January 6th, known variously as the Feast of the Epiphany, Twelfth-night or Three Kings Day.

In some countries, gifts are not presented until January 6th because that is the day commemorating the Three Wise Men and their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. Children in Italy, Spain, Mexico, France, Central and South America, and Puerto Rico receive gifts on that day.

Twelfth-night, of course, was immortalized by Shakespeare in his comedy by that name. One theory has it that the play was written to be performed before Queen Elizabeth I as part of the festivities on Twelfth-night, January 6, 1601. Although it is not known which play Shakespeare's company performed that night, they did provide entertainment at Whitehall on that occasion, underlining the importance that Elizabethans placed on the holiday. Today, the English wait until Twelfth-night to take down their Christmas greens.

Christmas is a time for joy around the world

Christmas customs are as varied as the many cultures that encircle our globe, ranging from parades in the Philippines to love offerings in the Congo.

In the Congo, Christmas Day begins with groups of carolers going about the villages. Later, a worship service is held, during which a love offering is made by each worshiper to the Infant Jesus. However humble, no person would dream of attending Christmas services without bringing a birthday gift to Jesus.

In Austria, emphasis is placed on Jesus as the light of the world in a beautiful ceremony held in the home. On Christmas Eve, three large wax candles are prepared. As the family gathers around, singing hymns, the father lights the first candle. On Christmas Day, the second candle is lit and the third candle is lit on New Year's Day.

In this country, children receive their gifts from Knecht Ruprecht, a Santa-like figure who rewards good behavior.

Christmas is the occasion for a parade in South Korea. Christians in this country hold parades on Christmas Eve, during which they carry paper lanterns decorated with red crosses. (These paper lanterns also adorn Christian homes on Christmas Eve.) As they march, they sing Christmas carols. Later, they attend church services, which are followed by a late-night supper. Gift-giving is an important part of the festivities here.

French Canadians begin their Christmas with a midnight mass on Christmas Eve, after which the Reveillon, an elaborate dinner, is held in the home. Here, the holiday season does not end until the 6th of January, feast of the Epiphany. It is a time of merriment, in contrast to the religious aspect of Christmas itself.

In the Philippine Islands, children wear colorful wreaths and chains made of tropical flowers as they parade and sing after services on Christmas Day. Here, homes are decorated with flags, bunting, palms, flowers and candles. Family dinners follow the parade, with dancing and music adding to the festivities.

December days are the reason for that uniquely Australian custom, the Christmas Day picnic. Another tradition on this continent is the big community sing, when huge crowds gather outdoors to sing carols from nightfall to midnight, by the light of torches and candles.

In Italy, children eagerly await the coming, not of Santa Claus, but of La Befana, a witch who rides her broomstick from house to house, leaving presents of coal for any misdeeds. Every home in south Italy has its presepio, or creche, while in the North, Christmas trees are central to holiday celebrations.

On Christmas Eve, Italian children traditionally write a "Christmas Letter," wishing their parents a happy holiday and promising to be good.

As one would expect, singing is an important part of Christmas in Wales. This is reflected in the Eisteddfoddes, where townspeople and caroling choirs gather in the marketplace to sing carols. Contests are held during the Eisteddfoddes, with the winning song performed by the winner's choral group. Plum puddings and mince pies, and Christmas stockings hung at the foot of the bed are the other Welsh traditions at Christmas.

Although customs may differ from land to land, throughout the world the spirit of Christmas is ever the same — one of joy and goodwill go all!

Joyful Tidings

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.

Luke 2:8-11

Holiday plants enhance season

Many plants are synonymous with Christmas. Probably the earliest association is that of frankincense and myrrh. The Roswellia candelii, the tree from which frankincense is gathered, is related to the turpentine of the goshawk tree. It has star-shaped flowers and its aromatic resin can be made into incense. At one time frankincense was considered to be as precious as gold. Thus, the gift of frankincense to the Christ Child was indeed a special one.

The commiphora myrrha is an unlikely-looking plant to be associated with the holiday season. But, it was from this shrub — bearing sharp, ugly thorns — that the Magi's gift of myrrh was obtained.

Christians aren't the only ones who've decked their halls with boughs of holly; the ancient Druids started this custom. Believing that sylvan spirits dwelled within the holly, the Druids sought to protect the spirits from frost and wintry winds, by bringing the plants indoors.

The early Romans sent branches of holly to friends and neighbors during the Saturnalia festival, which was celebrated in December. Missionaries combined such pagan customs with those of Christianity during the 7th century. Thus, holly came to be a symbol of Moses' burning bush, and its prickly points and red berries reminded the faithful of the crown of thorns that awaited the Christ Child.

Mistletoe was well-known to the Druids by the name of all-heal. Later, Christians would use mistletoe as a symbol of Christ, the Divine Healer. The Druids also used mistletoe as a symbol of peace and goodwill. Enemies would embrace under the plant, which is how our custom of kissing under the mistletoe originated.

Perhaps no plant is as synonymous with Christmas as the poinsettia. Brought back from Mexico by Dr. Joel Poinsett during the 19th century, the plant flourished here in the United States. Today, it is a popular decoration in churches and homes during the holiday season. Its red bracts resemble the star of Bethlehem, which is probably why Mexicans call it the flower of the Holy Night.

Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without the fir tree, but it wasn't until the 8th century that the fir tree became associated with the holiday. It was then that the missionary Boniface persuaded the Teutons to transfer their worship of the sacred oak to an evergreen tree in honor of the Christ Child.

In the mystery plays of the 11th century, the fir tree was hung with apples to represent the garden of Eden. It remained for Martin Luther to adorn the fir tree with candles, to give us the Christmas tree we are so familiar with today.

Recalling the days of an old-fashioned Christmas

Can you remember the aroma of candles burning on the Christmas tree? If so, you have some precious memories of a bygone era, the time of the old-fashioned Christmas.

Most of us have only handed-down stories to evoke that special bit of Americana. According to these reminiscences, here is what Christmas was like many years ago:

Dashing through the snow in a one-horse open sleigh was not just a song, it was a very real experience during the holiday season, with harness bells jingling away as you crossed fields blanketed with snow.

At home, the old wood stove would be hard at work. Maybe mother would be making a batch of candy or baking some of her delicious holiday cookies.

There was wood to be brought in for the stove and fireplace; that was brother's job, while sister helped in the kitchen.

There was the tree — a real fir, pine or spruce tree — decorated with strings of popcorn made from home-grown corn, apples from the orchard, and handmade paper cones.

Even shopping was a special treat in those days; the wood stove in the local store would give out its warmth and spices in open bins would give off their wonderful aroma. On the counter, there were jars of colored candies to entice the youngsters.

On Christmas Eve, church bells would summon the faithful to special services; or perhaps there would be a Christmas play performed.

In the morning, there were gifts to open, gifts that had been fashioned by hand. There might be a hand-carved whistle, hand-knit socks, or carefully embroidered handkerchiefs. Whatever the gift, you knew it had been made with love, and received it in that spirit.

Later that Christmas Day, the family would gather in the kitchen, the biggest room in the house, at a long table laden with holiday foods. There would be Christmas turkey or ham or goose, pies that had been baked the day before, as well as special holiday bread.

After dinner, the youngsters would take their sleds to coast down snowy slopes; or, they might head for the pond with their ice skates.

At the end of the day, visiting uncles and aunts and cousins would pile into a sleigh or bobbed as the horses stamped their feet and shook their harnesses. And off they would go, shouting goodnight and "Merry Christmas" under the Christmas stars.

These ornaments are fun to make and decorate!

Children love making ornaments at Christmas time — here's an easy recipe for bread dough ornaments that they can help make and then decorate:

Mix 4 cups of flour and 1 cup of salt in a bowl, using a wooden spoon or rubber spatula. Add 1½ cups of water slowly, mixing as you pour. You may need more water, depending on the humidity, but keep the dough stiff for best results.

Knead dough for 10 minutes; when texture is soft and smooth, it will be ready for cutting.

Have the youngsters shape the ornaments with cookie cutters, inserting hooks into the dough at this time.

Bake dough in a 325° to 350° oven and no hotter. The ornaments should be rigid when removed from the oven.

Allow them to cool and let the kids take over, decorating them with poster paint or tempera. They can also sprinkle them with cake decorations, using regular white glue.

To keep the finished ornaments looking pretty longer, spray them with an acrylic gloss; this will also give them a nice shine.

Hang the ornaments on the Christmas tree for all to admire, or have the youngsters give them as gifts.

May His Word inspire you at Christmas and in the days that come. Joy to all!

Capital Improvement Program

Half billion $ budget gets Council ok

By Lee Cahill

VIRGINIA BEACH—The City of Virginia Beach's five year $503,429,023 Capital Improvement Program has been approved as presented by City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck with several amendments. The approval came at last week's meeting.

An attempt by Councilwoman Barbara Henley to have the motion include a redistribution of the projects which would be placed on bond referendums failed.

A motion to approve the CIP, with three amendments, was made by Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. and passed by a 9-2 vote with Henley and Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf dissenting. Henley indicated she would propose her redistribution plan when the referendums were considered, possibly in January.

The amendments included:

The addition of the Princess Anne Plaza drainage for $120,800 which will be taken from the General Fund;

An additional appropriation for the Little Neck Bikeway for $101,673 to revise the cost estimate to provide for the east side alignment. The total project will cost $437,648.

To reduce the cost estimate by $101,673 of the Sajo Farms Manor House renovation by $101,673 to be applied to the bikeway project, moving back the Sajo project. The project originally scheduled to begin in 1985 is now scheduled for 1987 with partial funding.

Residents of the Bray Road area in Lynnhaven Acres also requested the $794,000 sewer project in their area be deleted. They said their lots are large, averaging 1.6 acres, and can accommodate septic tanks. They said the cost of hooking up for the large lots would range from $4,000 to $8,000.

The item was left in the CIP. The neighborhood was declared a potential health hazard by the Health Department, but is not considered a health hazard now.

Henley would have the City's charter bonds, which can be used at Council's discretion, or revenue sharing funds be used for the more basic improvements while leaving to the referendum the more optional or controversial projects.

The city has traditionally placed schools, water and sewer and roads on referendum. These items have traditionally received strong support from the public. Henley believes the only way the citizens could have a part in determining the more controversial issues is to place them on referendum. She said the city has an intelligent group of voters capable of making decisions such as that. She proposed leaving the School Bond referendum as it is because the School Board presented it that way, and also leaving the water and sewer bonds on the ballot because they are revenue bonds. Roads, Henley said, should be taken care of by Charter Bonds.

The budget includes referendums for $30,320,000 for schools, $48,177,496 for highways, $6 million for buildings and $153,735,000 for water and sewer.

Henley said projects such as the Beach Beautification Project belong on the referendum. She said the $27.6 million project would require half of the city's charter bonds for the planning period.

Also, Henley would place the $500,000 juvenile courts building and the district court building renovation on referendum; also the Sajo Farms Manor House ($55,000) over which the title has not been settled; Red Wing Golf course extension ($1,280,000) and the Virginia Beach Arts Center for which $283,805 has been allocated for site work.

Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. said he was in total disagreement. He said the meat and potatoes issues should go to the public. "I don't like to see parochial issues on a referendum," he said. He said that people already understand the projects and said that he didn't think that Henley really believes the city would win the referendum as suggested by her. He said it was a way to get the projects off the books.

Councilman John A. Baum said that people say they believe in long-range planning, but will vote parochially.

Vice Mayor Reba McClanan said that Council has a tendency to use charter bonds "for things we don't have to defend publicly." She said she supports all the projects. She said she supports the philosophy of Henley and Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf, who has the same opinion on referendums, but will support the majority on Council.

McCoy pointed out that he was opposed to the construction of the Pavilion, but that he was proved wrong.

Oberndorf also opposed the Pavilion. She said she openly admitted she was wrong. She said that the Beach Beautification plan has merit and she has worked to get bond issues passed in the past and would do so in the future. She said she believed the

Kiwanis donation appreciated

VIRGINIA BEACH—Peggy Bryson, principal of the Center for Effective Learning recently accepted a $2000 check from the Virginia Beach Kiwanis Club president, Forrest M. ## Party goers can ride free

NORFOLK—"Party all you want, but leave the driving to us."

Leigh Memorial Hospital will team up with Beach Taxi and Coastal Cab for the "Take A Taxi" promotion from 7 p.m., December 31, 1984 through 7 a.m., January 1, 1985.

Individuals in Virginia Beach desiring a taxi to take them home from a bar or party can call Leigh Memorial Hospital at 466-6800.

Rides from party to party or bar to bar will not be honored. Leigh will then call the taxi service to authorize and give details about the ride. Because of licensing restrictions, cabs can only pick up riders in Virginia Beach going 10 miles or less one way. Those riders exceeding 10 miles will pay the difference.

This New Year's Eve it will be possible to enjoy the celebration, but keep it safe and take a taxi home.

Memorial spruce tree planted

NORFOLK/VIRGINIA BEACH—The lighting of a 12-foot spruce tree, planted in memory of Navy Lt. Sator Clay Blackiston III, will be an ongoing tradition during the holiday season at Virginia Wesleyan College.

Blackiston, a French major and 1976 graduate of the college, was a former member of SEAL Team Two, stationed at Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base. He died April 12, 1984, in a parachute training accident in San Raphael, France. He was 36.

The lieutenant served two tours in Vietnam and was awarded many decorations and honors. In 1975 he was named Sailor of the Year by Commander Naval Surface Force, Atlantic Fleet.

Formal dedication of the tree and the lighting ceremony were recently held at the college. Attending the ceremony and unveiling the bronze plaque at the foot of the tree were his widow, Diane Dailey Blackiston, and his three young children, all of Virginia Beach.

Dr. Patricia Sullivan, associate professor in modern languages, said, "We hope that this evergreen will keep his (Blackiston) joyous spirit with us forever."

Sullivan, an instructor of Blackiston's, spearheaded the planting. Donations for the tree were made by Wesleyan faculty, staff and students interested in making this lighting a Wesleyan tradition.

High density housing app postponed

By Lee Cahill

VIRGINIA BEACH—Applications for rezonings for 294.7 acres in Princess Anne Borough for higher density residential uses narrowly escaped almost sure defeat earlier this month, when City Council approved a deferral until January 14.

The applicant, T.C.C. Development Corporation, had already lost its request for a rezoning from R-3 Residential District to B-2 Community-Business District on 5.3 acres on the west side of London Bridge Road south of Harpers Road. Council voted unanimously against the rezoning.

T.C.C. had also applied for rezoning for the adjoining acreage from AG-1 Agricultural District to R-8 Residential District on a 181.37-acre parcel, for a change from R-3 Residential District to R-8 Residential District on a 113.33-acre parcel, and for a change of zoning from R-8 Residential District to PD-H2 Planned Unit Development District on a 333-acre parcel. The applications also proposed a PD-H2 overlay for the presently-zoned Agricultural District.

The property is Phase II of the Pineridge Subdivision.

The Planning Commission had a tie vote on the application for commercial zoning. However, the Commission had recommended approval by a 6-4 vote on the other applications.

The applicant submitted a plan to City Council which differed from the one submitted to the Planning Commission. In that the number of units per acre was reduced from three-and-a-half to three, compatible with recommendations in the proposed comprehensive plan where the present plan calls for development at 3½ units per acre. The total number of units in the newest site plan was reduced from 822 to 705.

Council members questioned the plans for apartments in a neighborhood of mostly single-family homes while others were concerned about the incursion of townhouses in the area.

Another major objection stemmed from the inadequate road system. Although the city's master street and highway plan calls for 90-foot roads for London Bridge Road and the projected intersecting Seaboard Road, the proposed Capital Improvement Program does not provide funds for the projects.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley, while reluctant to approve the plan because of the road situation, said that the plan was "as close to meeting the PD-H2 requirements that I have seen." She agreed with Grover Wright, attorney for the applicant, that if the land was not suitable for three units per acre, there wasn't much that is.

When Wright said his client would agree to eliminating the apartments, but not the townhouses, Council, by a vote of 9-1, approved a deferral until January 14, to give the applicant time to rework his plan and to prepare an agreement that the project would be developed. Councilman Robert G. Jones dissented. He said that the applications were premature.

A motion to approve the applications was denied by a 6-4 vote with Councilmen John A. Baum, H. Jack Jennings Jr. and Dr. J. Henry McCoy and Mayor Harold Heischouer voting in favor.

Drive Soberly

The National Safety Council estimates that between 350 and 450 persons may die and 15,000 and 20,000 persons might suffer disabling injuries during the four-day New Year's weekend.

The period officially begins at 6 p.m., Friday, December 28, and extends until midnight, Tuesday, January 1. Last year, 13,000 persons suffered disabling injuries and 274 died in traffic accidents during the holiday weekend.

Safety Council statistics indicate that about half of all traffic fatalities involve a drinking driver. The Council suggests the following tips for motorists who will be attending parties where alcohol will be served:

- If you are going out with a group of friends, select one person to serve as the "designated driver." It then becomes the person's responsibility to abstain from drinking alcohol and to drive the others home safely.

- If you plan on driving, pace your drinking while at the party. Although alcohol affects everyone in different ways, your body needs approximately one hour to overcome the effects of alcohol for every beer or mixed drink consumed.

- Don't take a drink just to be sociable. If you prefer a nonalcoholic drink, such as coffee, soda or punch, ask the host or hostess for such a drink.

- If you are the host or hostess, have a supply of nonalcoholic drinks and hors d'oeuvres on hand. Take responsibility for your guests and mix the drinks moderately. Close the bar about an hour before the party ends to eliminate "one for the road" requests.

- If a guest has had too much to drink, help them find another ride home, encourage them to stay overnight or call a taxi cab for them.

- If you know beforehand you are liable to drink excessively, plan an alternative way home. If you have to, ask a sober person for a ride home, call a taxi cab or stay overnight. Remember, studies have shown that no one can drive as well drunk as sober.

Restraining the NFL

The Los Angeles Raiders' reputation for flouting the rules and getting away with it was recently reinforced when the U.S. Supreme Court rejected a National Football League bid to block the team's move from Oakland, Calif., to Los Angeles. Thus, the high court opened the door for other owners to move their teams from city to city as they see fit when their stadium leases expire.

The court decision ends four years of litigation that stemmed from the Raiders' move to Los Angeles after the Rams deserted that city's Coliseum for a newer stadium in Anaheim, Calif.

Now the NFL is left with two alternatives. It can either wait for Congress to enact legislation exempting the NFL from the antitrust laws that prevent the league from prohibiting such moves. Or, the league can refine its regulations so they comply with the law and prevent unscrupulous owners from milking a municipality and then moving on to greener pastures.

Inasmuch as Congress declined to enact such legislation two years ago, we think the NFL should revise its rules.

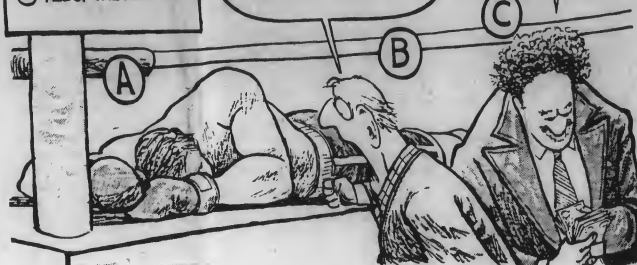

Clearly, a professional sports franchise should have the right to relocate once a community stops supporting the team. Such was not the case, however, in Oakland four years ago when the Raiders skipped town. The fans there had demonstrated their fealty to the club with sellouts for more than a decade. Whereupon Raiders' owner and general manager Al Davis casually abandoned Oakland's fans, ignored his fellow owners and moved his team to Los Angeles.

Professional sports teams exist to make a profit. And the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals correctly concluded that pro football clubs are independent business entities and therefore subject to federal regulations forbidding conspiracies in restraint of trade. Moreover, the court held that the league policy of preserving exclusive territories for most teams allows them "to set monopoly prices to the detriment of the consuming public."

Simply stated, the NFL has the power to police its ranks, but it has no right to restrain trade.

Letters To The Editor

A modest proposal for homeless, jobless

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

I disagree with the idea of building shelters and providing food for the homeless.

I have a cheaper way that would be more freedom oriented.

Here's how it works: When a person is homeless and jobless, to succeed he has to bridge a very large gap. He has to go from having nothing to having a room, job and bus fare (if he is on the bus line). Getting all three of these things at the same time is almost impossible. Here is why. You can't work a job, if you have nowhere to stay, because the police will hassle you for sleeping on the sidewalk or in a bus terminal. Even if you did sleep a little you would be in no condition to work a job with a standard boss. Because minimum wage jobs require you to be alert. You can't be alert if you nearly froze the night before.

Here's the program I propose:

First: Let the president encourage cities to zone some unused tracks of land as camping areas. Get the cities to find businessmen willing to operate camps in these areas.

Next: Legislate the following scale for camps to have for their fees: 1. sleeping on the ground without anything except clothing - smallest fee. 2. Sleeping on the ground with a sleeping bag or blanket - a little higher fee. 3. Using two man pup tent - next higher fee. 4. Using a tent with verticle walls - next level fee. 5. Using a tent in a private high fence with a lock - next level fee. 6. Using a trailer - highest fee.

By law every camp would have to be divided into these six equal areas.

As you've probably guessed by now, the above areas would make it possible for a person to gradually move up from sleeping on the ground to being ready for a rooming house. And he did it all by himself.

Now comes jobs:

The people starting out in the camps are not ready for a full time job. So we would legislate that all in the camps would post daily (on a bulletin board) all the short odd jobs that people in the city would call in to the camp. There would be a pay phone in the camp so that campers can call up residents about the odd jobs. These jobs would give them self-respect and enough money to pay their camp fee and buy some food. These jobs wouldn't be controlled by minimum wage or income tax.

Now you see how a camper can move up in the camp. an wolf

This program wouldn't apply to camps outside of city limits.

About Transportation:

A person starting out in a camp probably wouldn't have a car. So the city bus companies would have to include the camps on their routes.

Now the beautiful part:

The camps wouldn't cost the federal government or the cities anything. In fact the camp owners would pay taxes. And the camper would eventually get regular jobs and pay taxes. Instead of spending money, Uncle Sam would make money!

Was Richard III an evil man?

In 1485 the worst villain in English history got his just deserts. Or did he? Richard III has been vilified for five centuries as the archetype of a man who would stoop to any crime to gain and hold onto power. He is accused of innumerable murders; his king, his brother, his wife, friends, and worst of all his two young nephews. The Tower of London's bloody reputation begins with the disappearance there of those two boys, the princes of the Tower.

Yet throughout these five hundred years there have been those who have believed in Richard's innocence. When they heard of his death, the city of York wrote in their records, "This day was our good King Richard piteously slain and murdered; to the great heaviness of this city." Since then writers such as Horace Walpole have found the tale of his villainy too much to swallow. Recently, the debate over Richard has heated up, newly discovered documents have been examined, and a number of books have been published.

Desmond Seward has written the most recent and the harshest of these. Richard III, England's Black Legend is based in part on the writings of Dominic Mancini, an Italian who visited London at the time of Richard's coronation. Seward uses Mancini to confirm the character portrayed in William Shakespeare's play Richard III. This is the machiavellian, crookback Richard who tells the audience, "Since I cannot prove a lover... I am determined to prove a villain." Seward suggests that this view of Richard III has more tragic grandeur than the "malignant victim that has inspired several 'lady novelists'."

The lady novelist who reopened the case in the twentieth century was Josephine Tey. A mystery writer, she had her hospitalized and bored detective, Alan Grant, investigate the case against Richard III as an alternative to staring at the ceiling. Her story The Daughter of Time is not a biography, but rather the application of the classic questions of method, motive and opportunity to the disappearance of the princes in the Tower. Her crucial points concern motive. Elimination of the princes did not secure the throne for

Stop the presses!

It all started with a couple of K-94 T-shirts. Going from there to the letter to Mike Arlo was simple enough, although it didn't seem so at the time, but the result was amazing. Complete quiet on an afternoon of production. And if you know anything of the high spirits involved in meeting a newspaper production deadline, you know just how amazing quiet can be.

K-94 Radio had thrown a ratings party, and one of the favors we who attended carried away were station T-shirts decked out on one side with a false tuxedo front. Just the thing for our production staff, I used. And so I brought a shirt to Sue Fuller, our amiable typesetter and production boss, and Julie Phalon, who was then staff artist.

"Bribes!" my editorial cohorts charged. "Disgraceful!" they went on. "Imagine giving a gift to those women."

So things rolled along until one night, in a devilish mood, I sat with my friend Mary Noel, Vice President/General Sales Manager at WNOR radio, having a glass of wine, discussing what had gone on, and we determined to write a letter to Mike Arlo, the mustachioed long-time deejay at the station, begging more shirts.

Ed's notes

By Samuel Martinette, Jr.

Having had a taste of the grape that night my handwriting was bit off, not to mention my syntax, I wonder what the heck, it's tough to be an editor after dark. As I recall, the letter went something like this:

Dear Mike Arlo:

Imagine my chagrin when some of my fellow workers came to the factory recently with K-94 T-shirts on! Having been an alumni of WNOR it was all I could do to hold my head high that day, even though your show was on the radio. As a longtime fan, I wonder if you could see your way clear to send me a couple of shirts to uphold the great NOR tradition and still this mutiny!

Furthermore, I wonder if you might play "Sympathy For The Devil" by the Rolling Stones at one p.m. next Tuesday afternoon, since it equates to our position here. Thank you for your help on this very serious matter.

Your Fan
Sam Martinette
P.S. If you don't send the shirts I will write Bruce Garraway at WNVZ and ask him for some.

Your pal,
Sam

Anyway, the letter may have rambled a bit more, with a wet red spot here and there, but that was the general idea. And time passed into Tuesday.

Which is a most exciting day, with typesetters screaming at editors, artists snarling, editors begging for copy, general confusion and aggravation, all of which ends up so calmly on your printed page.

The normal highjinks were on when all of a sudden at one p.m. Mike Arlo dropped my name over the radio. And everything stopped.

Sue Fuller stopped pounding away at her machine, Julie Phalon raised her head from her drawing board, Mike Gooding, editor of The Portsmouth Times came rambling in, and The Chesapeake Post's Greg Glassner cupped his hand around his ear to hear...

The beauty of radio. That instant communication with the listener so many miles away. As Arlo's voice wafted through the now silent room discussing Fuller and Phalon's need for T-shirts and my bad handwriting I reflected on how much one had to go through to get this batch quiet on a production afternoon.

"I can't dedicate this song to the crew out there working, of course," Mike said as the Rolling Stones began to sing, "my boss won't let me..."

And as the song began to play, just like the birds in the trees at dawn sound returned to our little room, and the staff began to scream at each other again, and all was back to normal.

TCC computers to allow students "hands on time"

VIRGINIA BEACH—The business division at the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College has recently obtained 25 personal computers that will, according to one instructor, "allow TCC to offer the popular courses that owners of micro-computers are asking for."

Louis Tinaro, assistant professor of data processing, said the 25 Olivetti machines, housed in a thermostatically-controlled room in the new occupational-technical building, will provide students with a great deal of "hands-on" experience.

Students enrolling in the college's "Introduction to the Personal Computer" course winter quarter will use the machines. "This is not actually a programming course" stated Tinaro, "but an extensive overview of the kinds of software and software programs available."

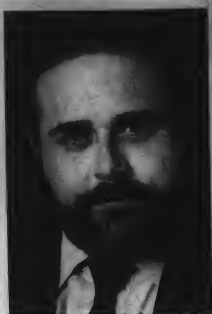

Four sections of "Introduction to the Personal Computer" will be offered winter quarter and will include both daytime and evening courses. Sun readers interested in enrolling should call the business division at 427-7123. Registration week and continues through December 21. Students can also register for classes on January 2. Classes begin January 3.

What to expect?

Real Estate

By Roger Pyle

For this week's article let's talk about what you should expect from your residential Realtor if you are a homebuyer.

First of all, I need to emphasize that most Realtors work on a commission basis. They are to be admired for that. Their pay is unequivocally tied to productivity which is one thing that the entire U.S. economy needs more of. Also, it takes lots of coverage and self-confidence to work on 100% commission. If your Realtor is providing good service, he deserves your loyalty.

Good service to a homebuyer should include:

1. If you are coming in from out of town, advance information packets should be sent to give you an overview of the area, outlining good residential locations, routes to your work and schools. Motel reservations and precise directions on how to get there should be given.

2. You should expect to be picked up at your motel, provided with an area briefing that includes where the best home values are in your price range, routes and distances to your work, schools and recreation.

3. Your Realtor should then show you all the suitable property in your price range. They should be able to explain differences in construction, location and financing. Here's where the loyalty comes in. If your Realtor is doing a good job for you, for heaven's sake stay with them. If you go out with another Realtor, it is the same as dropping your original Realtor cold. If that's what you want to do, it's perfectly permissible, but if your Realtor is doing a good job, stay with them.

4. Your Realtor can help you make your final selection of the right home, advise you on what to offer, negotiate with the seller, finalize the sale and help you get the loan.

5. Finally, they should go to settlement with you to help make sure that everything is completed to your satisfaction.

HR livestock exports up

RICHMOND—Foreign purchase and subsequent shipment of 559 dairy cattle and 437 breeding swine from Virginia export companies during the three months ending January, 1985, represent sales of $1,591,425.00.

Joseph H. Chu, Livestock International Marketing Specialist with the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services said buying teams representing countries of the Far East and South America have selected the animals and agreed on the purchase price.

In November, 174 Holstein heifers and 317 swine for breeding were shipped with the remainder to be exported during December and January.

Chu credits these sales to the combined market development activities of the private sector, livestock export companies and the International Trade Office of the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services. This relatively strong export market for Virginia livestock is expected to continue during 1985.

Certificate of Excellence

VIRGINIA BEACH—Brooks Transfer and Storage Co., Inc., has received a Certificate of Excellence from United Van Lines for exceeding a 50 percent increase in business for 1984, it was announced by Robert J. Baer, the van line's president.

C. Fair Brooks III is president of Brooks, which has offices at Hampton, Virginia Beach, and Richmond.

The award was announced at the van line's 38th Annual International Convention, held recently at Marriott's Marco Beach Resort, Marco Island, Florida. More than 1,000 agents, spouses and guests from around the world attended the four-day meeting.

Chef Rene' Arend, McDonald's Product Development Chef, recently appeared at Lynnhaven Mall - Food Court. Rene' Arend, Chef for McDonald's since 1976, deboned a chicken and prepared one of his original creations: hot mustard sauce. Following the food demonstration, the audience that gathered had time to question and sample the sauce. A cook booklet written by Chef Rene' entitled "Creating Your Own Secret Sauces" was autographed by the Chef and distributed.

Cox graduate is getting used to oriental life

By Staff Sgt. Barbara Ray
Special to the Sun
OKINAWA, JAPAN—Living on an island, communicating with people who speak a different language, driving on the left hand side of the road and eating with chop sticks are just a few of the daily adjustments soldiers like Spec. 4 Dawn D. York face during a tour of duty on Okinawa.

The daughter of Gordon D. and Janice F. York, of West Lynnhaven Road in Virginia Beach, York said recently that she likes Okinawa. "The weather is really great, there are a lot of places to see and the people are interesting to learn from," she said.

"The Japanese people always go out of their way to help me and most of them can speak some English so I don't have too much trouble communicating with them."

"The things I don't like about Okinawa are the size of the island, the laws of driving on the left hand side. Even the Japanese cars are set up for left handed driving so I really have to concentrate when I drive. The only other thing I don't like is being so far from home that I can't just pick up the phone and talk to someone. I just have to hope that people write me back and keep my spirits up," York added.

"There are quite a few people here, like myself, without families and having a lot of activities helps us cope with the separation. I've been here three months without my son, Christopher, and I finally get to bring him over here."

"He is only a year old and when our three years are up he'll probably be able to speak Japanese better than I."

Because of Okinawa's strategic location it is often called the Keystone to the Pacific. American soldiers have been stationed on Okinawa since 1945 and the island was the site of the last major battle of World War II.

York is assigned to U.S. Army Garrison, Camp Kinser, the senior Army organization on the island. "In my job as a personnel actions specialist I work with retirement packets, discharges, casualty reports, applications for marriage, reenlistment contracts and awards, which are the hardest," explained York. "It's difficult to keep up with my work load here. In the States there would be close to 50 people to do all the different personnel actions, that are done by half that many here."

Dawn York is a 1981 graduate of Frank W. Cox High School, Virginia Beach.

A New Year's tradition

In my family New Year's Day means ham and black eyed peas, along with vegetables, and of course some sweet temptation.

But after spending Christmas week with families my thoughts for New Year's are ESCAPE!!! How about going to stay at a gorgeous historic inn with your special someone? My first choice is the Boar's Head Inn in Charlottesville. Unfortunately work schedules won't allow my breakaway at this time so...I thought I'd use their ham recipe for New Year's dinner to make me feel better.

This one is from the book, Virginia's Historic Restaurants and their recipes, by Dawn O'Brien, John F. Blair, Publisher, Winston-Salem, North Carolina. It is a great book, available in several area stores. Try this recipe and slip into the new year with the elegance of another century.

Boar's Head Inn's Virginia Ham with Raisin Sauce

1 16 to 18 pound ham
1 16 ounce can of peach halves
Cover ham with water and soak overnight. Drain water and place ham in a large pot and cover with cold water. Bring to a simmer and cook for 2 to 3 hours, or until bone removes easily. Drain water and remove fat rind. Bake at 375° for 45 minutes, glazing with juice from peaches. Garnish with peach halves and serve with Raisin Sauce. Serves 12.

Chow Line

By Julie Storeide

Raisin Sauce

1 quart water
½ cup seedless raisins
2 oranges, juice only
1 lemon, juice only
4 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup cold water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
Fill a saucepan with one quart of water and add raisins. Simmer slowly until raisins are soft. Set aside. Combine orange and lemon juices and dissolve the cornstarch in this mixture with one cup of water. Add the cornstarch mixture to raisin mixture; cook, stirring with wooden spoon, until thickened and glossy. Add salt, brown sugar and vinegar. Bring to a boil, remove from heat and serve with ham.

Virginia fuel assistance program gears up

RICHMOND—The state Board of Social Services voted to increase by 12 percent benefits available to eligible low-income Virginia households for the 1984-85 Fuel Assistance Program.

This action occurred at the Board's October meeting when it was learned that the state would have $39.8 million available in benefits from the Low Income Home Assistance Block Grant. Making projections from previous years' fuel assistance program grant amounts, the Department had earlier anticipated to receive about $35 million for benefits for this year's program.

The actual amount of assistance allotted to each household is based on income, household size, and geographic area of the state. With the 12 percent increase, the maximum fuel assistance benefit per household in the Western Region of the state will be $443; in the Eastern Region, $306; in the Southern Region, $395; in the Central Region, $422; and in the Northern Region $427. Virginia Beach is in Level II of the Eastern Region.

The maximum income levels will remain the same as previously announced.

Local departments of welfare and social services began taking applications for fuel assistance November 1.

Last winter, some 113,299 Virginia households received help with their heating bills. The average fuel assistance grant was $261, with a maximum of $347.

Sun readers needing further information about the fuel assistance program may call the Virginia Department of Social Services, toll-free, at 1-800-552-3431 during normal business hours. Hearing impaired individuals with access to a telecommunications device should call, toll-free, 1-800-552-2131.

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Civitan Club of Virginia Beach selected Zabrina Gonzaga, a junior at Kempsville High School; Elizabeth H. von Kilnitz, a junior at Frank W. Cox High School; Patricia Ann

Richard III - good or bad?

Richard, but their deaths were vitally necessary to his successor Henry VII. Her conclusion is that the documents on which Seward relies were propaganda written under the reign of Henry VII. She was unaware, however, of Mancini's writings which presumably were not affected by the power of the new king of England.

The Sunne in Splendour by Sharon Kay Penman is a very detailed novel of the Wars of the Roses which ended with Henry VII. It follows reported events very closely while offering an explanation of each of the crimes of which Richard is accused. This author's choice for murderer of the princes is the Duke of Buckingham, who betrayed Richard to join Henry. The background material in her lengthy novel makes this complex period of history remarkably clear, though always with her biases about which were the heroes and which the villains.

Reading all these versions of events together still leaves open either interpretation of Richard's character. Certainly he was one of the bravest English kings. Even those who believe in his crimes accept that he was a remarkable fighter, the only English king since the conquest to die in battle.
